First case for new D.A. Ed Walsh

Jury ponders murder charge

Thomas Lee Washington, a 34 year old Taylor mechanic, stood trial for murder in 26th District Court in Georgetown last week.

A verdict had not been rendered by the 7 woman, five man jury at press time Friday evening, but was expected later Friday night.

The murder trial is the first trial by Ed Walsh as the new District Attorney in Williamson County.

Pro-beer ad found wrong

A full-page advertisement in The Williamson County SUN this week favoring the sale of beer and wine in Georgetown contains errors and is misleading, a check by The Sunday SUN has revealed.

COMPARING ARRESTS for drunkenness in Taylor and Georgetown, the ad claimed that 167 such arrests were made in Taylor and 204 such arrests in Georgetown during 1976. The Taylor figure, Taylor Police Chief A. O. "Pete" Schier told The SUN, did not include arrests of drunk drivers. When these were added Taylor had 236 arrests. The 204 arrest figure given for Georgetown included all alcohol-related arrests, including those for drunk driving.

Thus, the true number of alcohol-related arrests in the two towns should have been stated as: Taylor, 236; Georgetown, 204.

THE ADVERTISEMENT also claimed that legalizing of beer sales in Burnet had resulted in a dramatic gain in income tax refunds. The ad said that Burnet received $11,000 in refunds in 1970, the year before beer was legalized. "For the year of 1974, with the legal sale of beer, the state returned $72,000, a $61,000 increase over 1971," the ad claimed.

The State Comptroller's department told The SUN Wednesday afternoon that Burnet got $55,188 in refunds in 1971, $73,214 in refunds in 1974. The gain was $18,026, dramatically less than the claimed $61,000 gain.

HOW DID Georgetown fare in that same time frame, without legalizing beer? In 1971 Georgetown's refund was $79,028. In 1974 it got back $116,470, a gain of $37,442.

Georgetown area citizens were to vote in a beer-wine for off-and-on-premises consumption issue Saturday.

Washington was indicted for murder in the shooting of Michael Miles on July 19, 1975, outside of the High Life Club on Walnut Avenue in Taylor. Mitchell was a 24 year old lieutenant stationed at Fort Hood near Killeen, Texas.

Washington has been out on bond since July of 1975, but the case was never tried until Walsh took office last month.

The defense attorney, Geoffrey A. Fitzgerald of Temple, said in his argument before the jury that there is no question of the fact that Washington shot and killed the man, it is just a question of intent.

Three eye witnesses testified before the jury during the 5-day trial.

The jury can declare one of three verdicts: guilty of murder, guilty of voluntary manslaughter or not guilty.

If convicted of murder, Washington faces a maximum sentence of life imprisonment.

If convicted of voluntary manslaughter, Washington could get a maximum sentence of 2-20 years imprisonment and possible fine of up to $10,000.

The defense attorney praised Walsh, saying that no matter what the verdict is, Williamson County is lucky to have a District Attorney that is not afraid to prosecute.

Most District Attorneys would bargain off a close case like this, said Fitzgerald. "A case like this is a tough one and could go either way."

Most new prosecutors would be scared to do it, they would have tried an easy case at first, like a marijuana bust, because their reputation is at stake.

Both attorneys presented their final arguments to the jury on Friday.

If a verdict of guilty is declared by the jury, the jury will meet again next week to decide the sentence.

Community Development plan clears first hurdle, faces next

Georgetown's application for $228,000 in federal Community Development funds for 1977 cleared its first hurdle this week and now faces its second.

The application won unanimous approval Wednesday from a committee of the Capital Area Planning Council (CAPCO), an Austin-based "council of governments."

CAPCO REVIEWS applications for various types of federal funds to certify that they comply with regional development plans. Favorable review can be very important for such application.

City Manager Leo Wood said the application was then rushed Thursday to the San Antonio Area headquarters of the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), where it will undergo further scrutiny.

"I checked with HUD Friday morning and they said everything was in order and the application is in processing," said Wood, adding.

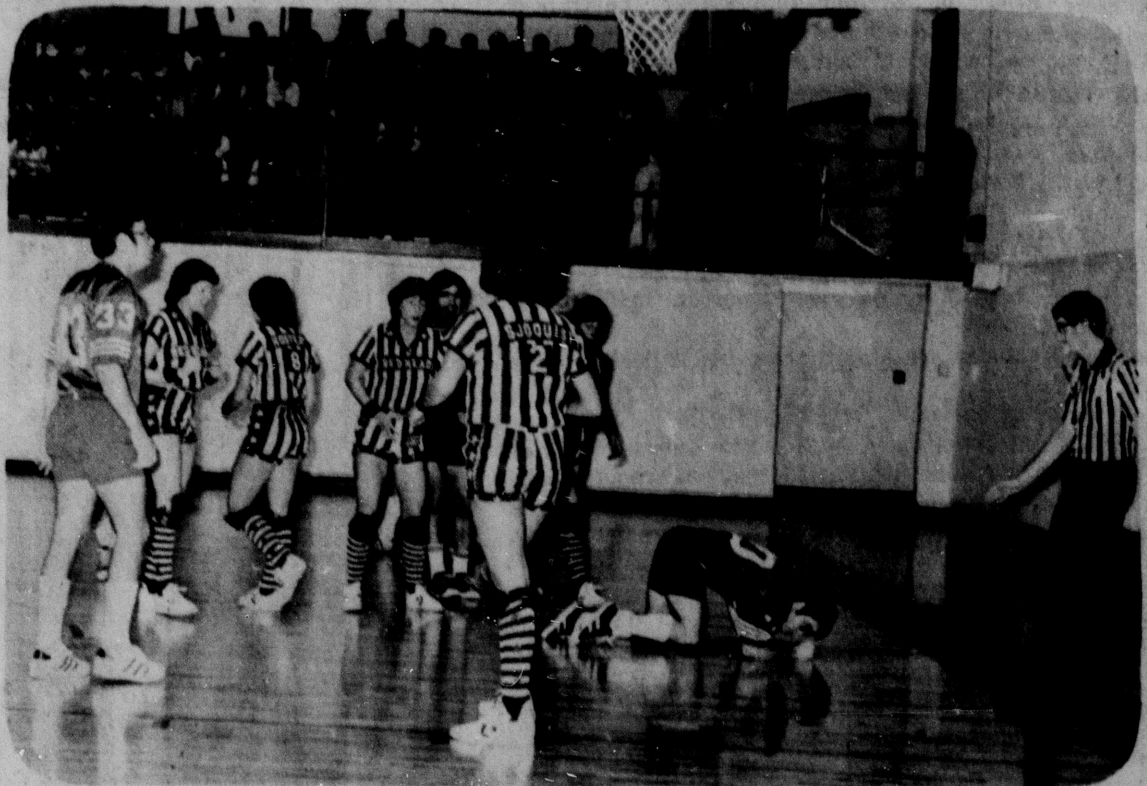

HUD seemed very pleased after general observation of our application."

GEORGETOWN has already gotten $456,000 in Community Development funds over the past two years and hopes to get that much more this year and the following two.

All of the first year's grant went to construction of a raw water intake structure at the site of the future Northfork Lake. Most of the second year's allocation went to drainage projects and construction of a new Georgetown Neighborhood Center.

THIS YEAR the money would go to more drainage projects; acquisition of a sanitary landfill site, and extension of a water main from the intake structure to the site of a future water treatment plant.

The city should get final word on this year's Community Development application by mid-April.

EVEN PRAYER didn't help the Twinkle Toes Twelve last Thursday night. Seriously, Georgetown High School freshmen coach Ed Ruby (kneeling) did get bounced around a little playing basketball against those big red headed girls. (See story and pictures page 8).

Council to set city election

Three seats up for grabs April 2

The Georgetown city council is scheduled to call an April 2 election to fill three council seats when it meets at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the council room at City Hall, 103 W. Seventh St.

UP FOR GRABS will be the positions now held by council members Harry Gold, J. D. Wininger, and William C. "Wiggie" Shell. Each position carries a two-year term.

Also on the council's agenda are:

- Consideration ordinance raising water and tap rates as well as filing charges for subdivision plats. Under the proposed ordinance, customer inside city limits would pay a dime per month more for 10,000 gallons of water while those outside town would pay $6.40 more for the same amount. The charge for each type of water and sewer tap would also be hiked $100. Developers would pay a $50-per-lot fee for each plat they file, at the time the plat is finally approved. Since the proposal is in the form of an emergency ordinance, there will be only one reading.

- Engineering and other types of reports on the feasibility of locating a 2½ million-gallon water storage tank about five miles northwest of Georgetown. The city administration may ask permission to advertise for bids to construct the tank, which it is estimated would cost $300,000.

- EXAMINATION of the request by the Williamson County Commissioners' Court to lease land in San Gabriel Park for location of a new Livestock Show and Fair building. The Commissioners had originally sought a 99-year lease on the land for a token annual fee, but may now ask to purchase the property.

- Consideration of a name for the new Georgetown Neighborhood Center located at Montgomery and Eighth streets. Representatives of Williamson-Burnet County Opportunities, Inc., the local Community Action agency which will operate the center, will be on hand to discuss the question.

Week's news in a nutshell

People all over the country are still talking about President Carter's fire-side chat. Most agree that he was just a little short of superb. However, whether he influenced many people to turn their thermostats to 65 during the day and on down to 55 at night remains to be proven. Meanwhile, there has been a thaw in some sections of the frozen north and relief not spelled R-O-L-A-I-D may be here to stay for a while.

THE ROUND ROCK LEADER had a by-lined indepth story on Williamson County's bail bondsman situation, revealing that the celebrated Frank Smith of Austin, now having his troubles in more ways than one, owes the county considerable money but is deemed fully able to pay. Smith, the story relates, has been making surety bonds in this county since he entered the business about three years ago. Surety bonds posted by professional bail bondsmen carry a guarantee they will be paid (by the bondsman) if they are forfeited, that is, if the accused fails to appear when called. Bondsmen charge 10 to 15 percent for their services, generally, although this can vary widely.

Mexico's President Jose Lopez Portillo will visit President Carter February 14, becoming the first foreign head-of-state to meet with the new U.S. leader. News of the impending visit came as an announcement was made that Mexico would sell the U.S. a considerable quantity of natural gas and crude oil, badly needed by this country.

Porno shops were given the green light in Austin when a jury failed to define community standards on obscenity in a recent case.

A COUPLE OF ALICE, TEXAS TEENAGERS were picked up in Waco early this week carrying half a million dollars, which they said they dug up on a ranch in south Texas. By week's end a third boy showed up and confirmed the story, all three boys were out of jail and there is a possibility that they may claim successfully, at least a portion of the money.

KGTV-AM will broadcast Houston Astro daylight games, KGTV-FM the night contests during the forthcoming season, Manager Gary Seaman said this week. Last year the Georgetown station aired the Texas Rangers.

Pollster Louis Harris told Congress Thursday that the public rates congressional ethics poorly and wants fuller financial disclosure, limitations on moonlighting and restrictions on "slush funds". In the poll, taken last January, consumer groups and television news tied for first place with 66 percent rating. Newspapers were next with a 63. Congress was far down the light with 53 but not so low as major corporations (45) or organized labor (34). The majority of those sampled believed Congressmen should devote their full time to their congressional jobs.

PRESIDENT CARTER'S PLAN to send $50 to practically everyone living in this country was given a cool reception by Congress and Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns pointed out that the government would need to borrow money if the plan is carried out — so, what's new?

And... that bond issue to buy the waterworks and fund a sewer system at Cedar Park was busted by the voters, about 2 to 1. The city is expected to try again at an early date.

the passing glance

By Don Scarbrough

Richard Geer dropped by the SUN office Saturday morning last week and invited me to attend an awards program for Georgetown's new soccer league at the Georgetown Community Center that evening. He didn't say, as many do, "and bring your camera," but I decided to take one to snap pictures of the youngsters receiving their awards.

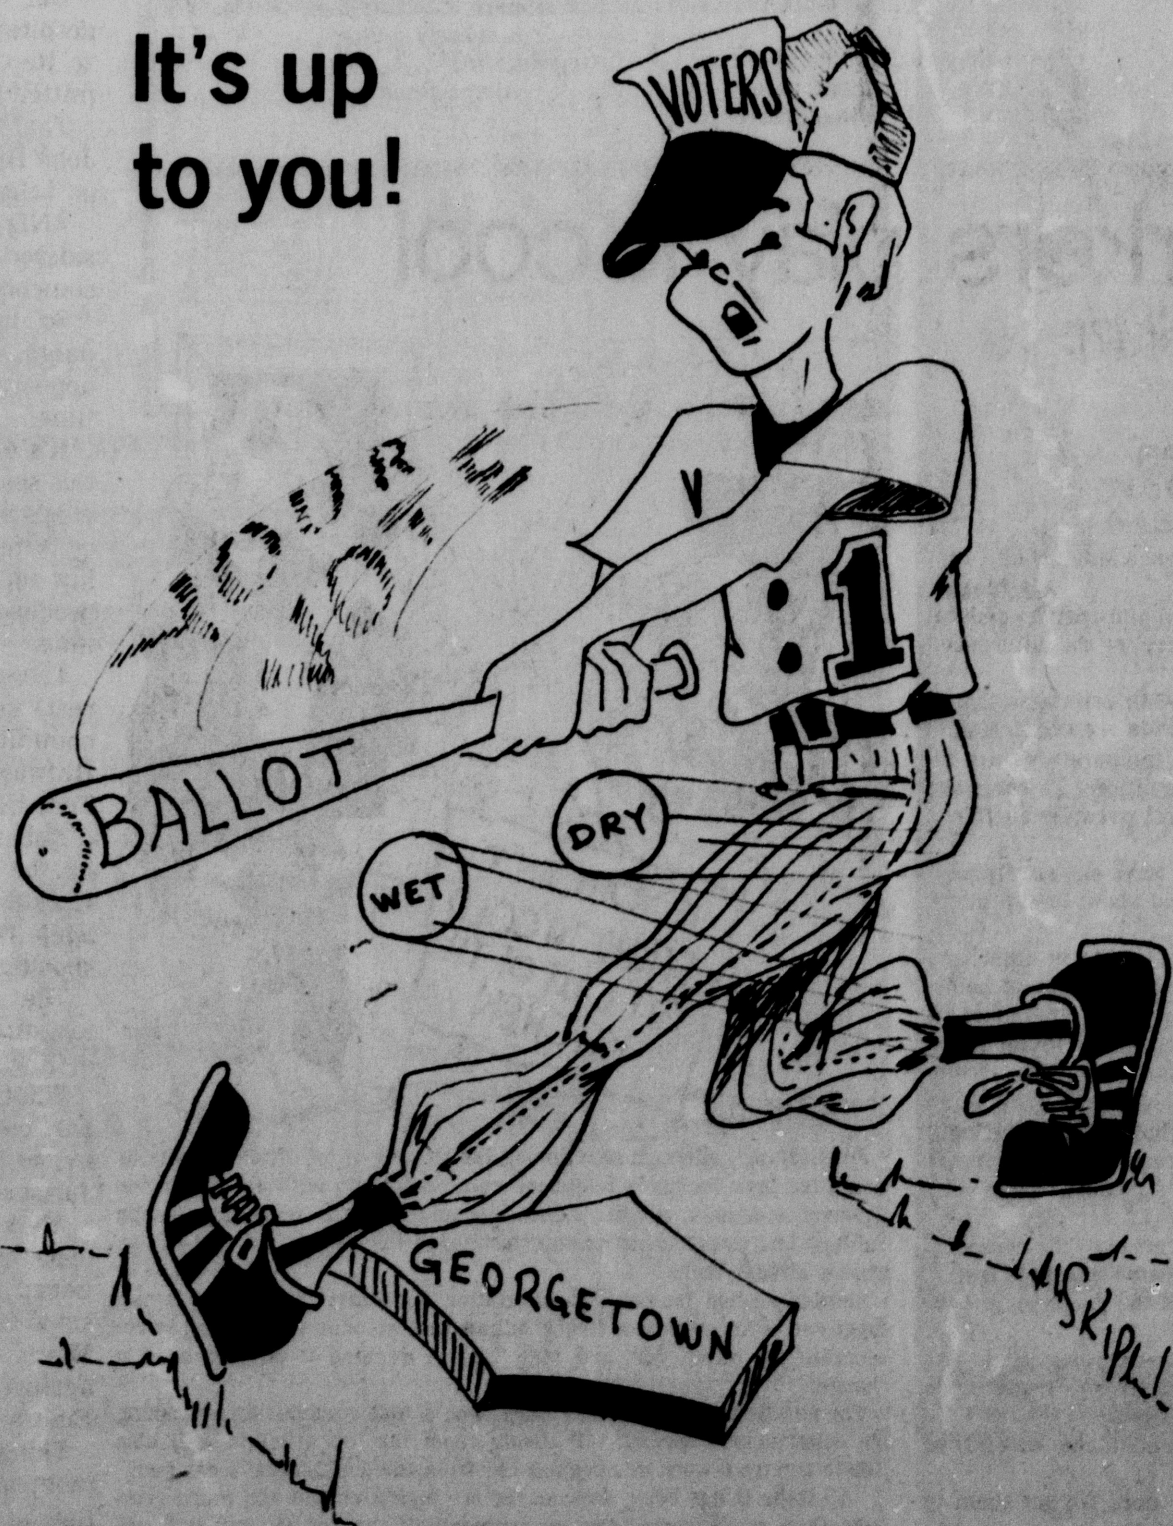

SO, I WENT and took my personal camera. Just before the program I moved a chair out in front of the rostrum by about 15 feet, focused my camera for that distance, and to be sure that everything was in good working order, snapped the shutter. That was fine. Now to advance the film for the next shot. My, the film advanced easily. Too easily? Yes, too easily! No film in the camera, the dumbest trick that a photographer can pull.

The classic way to handle that embarrassment would be to sit there and go through the process of taking all the pictures, then later claim the guy in the dark room ruined the whole roll. That's not what I did though. I just sneaked out.

SATURDAY NIGHT, well after The Sunday SUN went to press, our citizens knew the results of the latest attempt to legalize beer and wine in Georgetown and a large section of middle-Williamson County. I voted against the proposition because I think we have troubles enough as it is. I do think we pulled out of this divisive issue without many scars and I congratulate both sides for the achievement. I have seen these elections do real and lasting damage to community relations.

R. B. Lewis whose home is in the rural section of Georgetown's precinct said Wednesday morning as he made a special trip to the SUN office, "I've been living here since 1900 and Georgetown has been dry since that time. I just hope that I can die and it still be dry!"

It's up to you!

Paul Harvey

STOP WASTING THE SUN!

The future sneaks up on us. Nothing recently in the news was more significant to your future than the almost overlooked Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) announcement that solar heating has arrived.

ALL THESE YEARS we've been wasting sunlight!

Our trade balance with other nations is more unbalanced in their favor than it has ever been. Ever!

And mostly because of the higher prices we're having to pay for all that Arab oil.

And right now — mostly due to recent cold weather — our nation is using more oil than ever before. Ever!

December demand for oil was 11 percent up from the previous December.

And temperatures are still running below normal most places.

Now the GOOD news:

With the ERDA announcement it's now known that under certain conditions, solar heating is already as economical as electric heating.

And this government-sponsored study projects that within four years solar heat will cost no more than gas or oil.

And thereafter — it should cost much less.

THIS IS AN EXCITING evolution, accelerated by the so-called "fuel crisis." We can thank the mercenary Arabs for forcing us to do what we should have done a long time ago.

Now we are expanding our use of other energy sources: — Nuclear energy now generates 11 percent of our nation's electricity.

— Geothermal steam now generates 1 percent.

— Windmills are already helping — and ocean currents and tides may.

— Now we are beginning as never before to harness the sun.

In this race to see which alternative (or alternatives) is cheapest, may the best fuel win.

OUR GOVERNMENT is betting $290 million on solar energy, spending that much this year to accelerate research and development. As President, Jimmy Carter promises a bigger push for solar energy.

Yet — without counting on that, just utilizing the technology presently available — solar heating a new house will pay for itself with reduced fuel bills in 15 years.

The installation is the big cost — $6,000 to $12,000 for a single-family home with three bedrooms.

Understandably, presently, builders of new houses are inclined to favor gas or oil heat if only because that installation cost averages about $1,000.

BUT I HAVE SEEN at least one innovative solar heating system which promises an installation cost of less than $3,000 — so with a little "tax relief incentive" for builders to amortize that first cost of installation, America, before you know it, will again proclaim its "independence" from foreigners.

GI bill helping

ONE OF the best fringe benefits to come on the scene lately is the U. S. Army's new matching aid program to help soldiers build a college tuition fund.

The Educational Assistance Program — called by some the "GI Bill No. 2" — starts Jan. 1 and is open to any young man or woman who enlists for three years and agrees to put part of each paycheck into a special account until discharged.

For each dollar the individual has deducted, the Army adds two, up to $75 a month from the soldier. At the end of three years, the soldier can wind up with as much as $8,100 on deposit. It's then paid out in monthly installments of $225 for college expenses.

One of the most obvious good things about the plan in these days of high educational costs is that it allows a youth from a low or moderate income family to upgrade his college choices.

And, if a young person wants to attend college but thinks he isn't really ready for it, the Army program offers a concrete alternative by spending time in uniform, bringing maturity and self-discipline, before the college years.

Too, the plan, along with other attractive service incentives, will bring a steady stream of citizen soldiers through the armed forces without creating the overly inbred outlook some fear from an all-professional force.

Then, too, the Army may garner some highly qualified career soldiers via the new educational program.

The program certainly is new to the young people who might sign up for it, but it does have a clear precedent in the first GI Bill, the one coming out of World War II and its counterparts in Korea and later. Only in calling for a contribution in cash from the soldier is the program different.

The earlier GI Bill actually made money for the taxpayers, economists who have studied it believe. For every dollar spent on college or special vocational training for veterans, the Treasury got back several in taxes because of the education the soldiers received, to place them in higher income brackets.

Many cash bonuses vanish in the wink of an eye, spent on good times that leave pleasant memories, but little else. Such bonuses as this education plan should bring better life and attract high type individuals to the Army.

The program should inspire similar incentive programs, in both public and private bodies.

We invite young people to look into the Educational Assistance Program now, through our local Army recruiter, at 229-5000. San Antonio Light.

Many movies made in Austin and San Antonio in early 1900s

FOOTNOTE TO HISTORY — Both Austin and San Antonio once hoped to supersede Hollywood as the capital of the motion picture business.

As early as 1910, two brothers — W. Hope and Paul Tilley — were turning out commercial movies (mostly newsreels) in San Antonio. A year later, they moved on to Austin, set up studios on Congress Avenue and organized a production company.

By 1913, their Satex Film Co. had received an infusion of local capital and imported talent. The company tried its hand at making feature films. They produced three in Texas and along the Mexican border, budgeting each at a total cost of $5,000. The results were good enough that Warner Brothers Feature Film Company of New York distributed them around the U. S.

After six months, however, the company's star actress and the imported producer quit Texas for new opportunities in Chicago. Paul Tilley decided to leave, too, and moved to Hollywood where he got a job in film production. Brother Hope Tilley set up a new company and made a few more pictures in Austin.

He gave up after a short while, however, and the dream of making Texas the motion picture capital of the country died.

THE SCHOLARLY LIFE — Graduating from Stephen F. Austin University last fall with a perfect 4.0 grade point average was a student who may never use his education.

Thomas W. Matthews, the 25-year-old top scholar at the Nacogdoches school, is serving a life sentence for murder at Huntsville State Prison.

WHAT'S IN A NAME? — Del Rio, Val Verde County, was first known as "Las Sapas" and for good reason.

"Sapas" is an old Spanish word meaning "underground shelter." Since most of the first settlers lived in holes dug in the ground and roofed with tree limbs and mud, the community was known as "Las Sapas."

In 1862, Dr. James H. Taylor and his bride, Dona Paula Losoya de Rivas, moved to the area. He died shortly after, but Dona

Paula, joined by her sister, developed a thriving hacienda that was known as San Felipe del Rio. It eventually became the city of Del Rio.

ODD TEXAS — The largest state (next to Alaska, that is) has the smallest railroad.

Its main line is only 2 1/2 of a mile long, it owns no rolling stock, rents its locomotives and doesn't operate on Sundays. What's more, its main line ends smack in the middle of the Rio Grande.

It's the El Paso Southern, which provides a vital link between the U. S. and Mexico. Owned by the Southern Pacific, the line operates only from the S.P. main line to the center of the international bridge between El Paso and Juarez. There its tracks meet those of the Chihuahua Pacific Railroad of Mexico.

EVERYBODY'S CHURCH — San Juan, in the Rio Grande Valley, has a church, organized in 1918, which serves 23 different denominations.

Letters to the Editor

To the people of my beloved "home town" — Georgetown:

Why would anybody in this town have to stop and think about IF they should vote FOR — DRINK? Why would anybody have to have all the facts of it, stuck right under their noses? Why are some people so blind—that they just don't see—all the filth, corruption, and disrepute, that goes with it — if it's voted in? Why can't they remember — and don't they want to see — all the crime — drunken driving, murders, and rape — that we have had already right here on our quiet streets for so long? Don't they know about the dangers, the risks, the involvement — for the safety of each citizen's life, wherever they might happen to be?

Don't they realize that there would have to be more police called out, and they would have to patrol our streets around the clock?

Do any of you really want all this heartbreak and trouble, and do you want people carrying guns to break into your stores holding you up, — not only taking your money, but, — so that they can DRINK — some more!

Sincerely,—dear
Georgetown,
Allene Rhea

Federal workers play it cool

Sweaters, long underwear (?), boots or slacks are style in cold Washington offices

By Lucia Mouat

Staff correspondent of The Christian Science Monitor

Washington

Although only a week into the new Carter administration, federal workers will tell you they are already more than feeling the difference. For one thing, they are cold.

While the General Services Administration (GSA) estimates that it will be six weeks before federal buildings nationwide are registering in at 65 degrees as President Carter has ordered, temperatures are already at that level and lower in some Washington offices. To cover the goose bumps, many employees are wearing several sweaters and boots or slacks.

"Long underwear is also under consideration," says one government researcher already bundled into two sweaters and about to slip into a third.

Even at this early stage there are signs of cutbacks in other amenities as well. In addition to President Carter's cancellation of home-work-home car delivery service for White House staff members and his request to Cabinet members to reduce their departmental motor pools, there are so far few signs of the usual office refurbishing that accompanies a change in administrations.

"I'm sure people are moving furniture around, but as far as buying it and knocking out walls . . . we haven't had any requests yet for major or minor changes," says Linda Sutcliffe of GSA's public-services division.

Of all this first week's shifts, however, it is certainly the temperature drop which is netting the chilliest reception as too much too fast.

"I don't know what the temperature is, but half the people over here are freezing," says a Treasury Department staffer.

"All our thermostats have been lowered, but we're going to have to monitor the temperatures because some offices are too frigid to do business," says an Agriculture Department spokesman.

Indeed the word is that in some cases the air conditioning was turned on in an effort to keep temperatures down.

"We almost had a wind-chill factor over here until we got them to shut off the flow of cold air," says one Pentagon staffer.

While there is sure to be some office refurbishing as more Carter appointees move into new jobs in the executive branch, a few Cabinet members are setting examples of their own.

For example, although sanctioning the ripping up of office carpets to install hot lines for quick telephone communication with all nine of his top-level assistants, Health, Education, and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano has vowed to do no refurbishing of his own office, but to use what is already there.

Similarly when former Transportation Secretary William Coleman suggested to his successor Brock Adams that his wife might wish to redecorate the office, Mr. and Mrs. Adams decided it did not need a change.

The new Transportation Secretary, who is also considering abolishing the department's special VIP dining room for top officials, will also ride to and from work in a regular car from the department's car-pool.

"All these things being done so far are highly visible and more symbolic than really saving the government all that much money," observes one federal lawyer. "I think the Carter administration wants to change people's attitude about government and the way the government perceives itself."

AUSTIN — Atty. Gen. John Hill is setting up a new unit to investigate white-collar crime which costs Texans an estimated $840 million a year.

Hill will rely on the Deceptive Trade Practices Act, the State Securities Act and other laws to crack down on so-called "Corporate crime committed with a fountain pen."

Since Hill has only civil powers, he must cooperate with district attorneys and federal officials where criminal violations are suspected.

A unit director, three investigators and two attorneys will be financed by a $235,000 federal grant extending over an 18-month period.

Investigations already under way include South Texas banking irregularities spotlighted by collapse of banks at Carrizo Springs and Rio Grande City, disappearance of a Wichita Falls grain dealer and possible misapplication of state funds by a state highway employee.

A three year old Chamber of Commerce study classifies as white collar crimes deceptive trade practice, embezzlement and pilferage, securities theft and fraud, receiving stolen property, bribery, payoffs, kickbacks and various other forms of fraud.

Appointments

Gov. Dolph Briscoe named Sam E. Carter of Temple to the State Banking Board replacing James

L. Lindsey of College Station whose term actually expired in 1973.

Briscoe reappointed Raul Jimenez of San Antonio to the State Board of Public Welfare and Jackie St. Clair of Austin as Commissioner of the Texas Department of Labor and Standards.

Other reappointments included Gen. Thomas S. Bishop as Texas adjutant general; Gen. Willie Scott as assistant adjutant general for Army and Gen. Belisario D. J. Flores as assistant adjutant general for Air.

AUSTIN NOTEBOOK

By Bill Kidd

AUSTIN — First tests of strength in legislative committees and floor action indicate that the conservatives and Gov. Dolph Briscoe have an upper hand — but not absolute control.

True, the Briscoe-Nugent (as in Rep. James Nugent of Kerrville) highway funding bill zipped through Nugent's Transportation Committee like the old fiery horse with the speed of light — but that's hardly a fair indicator.

Everyone, or at least everyone who counts, in Texas is for highways — just like virtue. It's only a question of how much, where, and at what cost.

And in legislative circles, it's not considered good form to vote against the chairman's bill.

OR THE GOVERNOR'S BILL. Or, as one member put it, to the tune of the old musical song, "Whatever Briscoe wants, Briscoe gets."

But members seem willing to let Briscoe get whatever he wants just about as long as it corresponds with what they, too, want.

That goes for measures which have the support of the House leadership as well, as was shown on the brief furor over Hurst Rep. Charles Evans' bill to exempt Texas from provisions of the federal antitrust law (the "parens patriae" bill).

That bill, HB 592, moved quickly into and out of Judicial Affairs (which Evans chairs) almost quicker than you could say "do pass and be printed."

But something happened on the way to the House, despite the best wishes of various interest groups, and so Rep. Evans decided to send the bill back to committee for more hearing.

That something was the interest of Attorney General John Hill, who wants to keep the power to bring suits on behalf of consumers.

AND LEGISLATORS ALSO know that it can be considered bad form to vote against legislation favored by someone who might end up being governor.

So, in the first skirmishes of this legislative campaign, committee chairman and the governor appeared to be getting things their way about half the time.

It's early, of course, and there will be lots of things this session which will really show who's top dog, and who's the beagle on the bottom in the session dog-fight.

As far as conservative-liberal battles, the various law and order proposals appear to be the most likely to produce the most votes along liberal-conservative lines.

Those proposals (oral confessions, wiretaps and the rest) should have a good chance of getting through committee in the House, where Rep. Lynn Nabers of Brownwood chairs Criminal Jurisprudence, and Rep. Tom Uher, Bay City, heads State Affairs.

Nabers is expected to be more sympathetic to some of the proposals that Rep. Craig Washington of Houston — who chaired the group last session — and while there may be some close votes, law and order should have the edge there.

The same is true for Senate State Affairs, where long-time chairman and conservative Sen. Bill Moore of Bryan holds sway.

What happens on the Senate side will depend in large part on where bills are referred by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, since Sen. Tati Santiesteban of El Paso heads the Jurisprudence Subcommittee on Criminal Matters.

AND THAT BODY — in addition to a chairman who opposes some of the proposals which have been mentioned above — seems to have a built-in deadlock, since it contains Lloyd Doggett of Austin and Oscar Mauzy of Dallas, who are likely to end up voting against Walter Mengden of Houston and Bill Meier of Euless.

Things may end up looking quite differently once the momentum of the session begins to increase, and the flow of legislation quickens.

But at the moment, the conservatives, who have the numbers and the positions of power for the most part, haven't imparted the expected conservative flavor to this 65th session of the Texas Legislature.

EARNEST H. FINLEY JR.

Finley finishes Marine basics

Marine Private Earnest H. Finley Jr., son of Mrs. Jane Pinkert of 1809 Magnolia Drive in Round Rock, has completed recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego.

During the 11-week training cycle, Finley learned the basics of battlefield survival. He was introduced to the typical daily routine that he will experience during his enlistment and studied the personal and professional standards traditionally exhibited by Marines.

Finley participated in an active physical conditioning program and gained proficiency in a variety of military skills, including first aid, rifle marksmanship and close order drill. Teamwork and self-discipline were emphasized throughout the training cycle.

A 1976 graduate of Round Rock High School, he joined the Marine Corps in October 1976.

THE DISTINGUISHED ALUMNUS Award, highest honor given by the Alumni Association of Southwestern University, was presented posthumously in honor of Dr. Walter Quebedeaux in Pasadena Tuesday morning. Presenting the award to Mrs. Quebedeaux were President Durwood Fleming (left), Al Hebert, a 1971 graduate of Southwestern and now director of the Harris County Community Services Agency; and Ben Aderhold, executive vice president of the Alumni Association (far right). Dr. Quebedeaux, a nationally recognized pollution fighter, directed the Harris County Pollution Control Center for 23 years.

Welfare Board appoints committees

Committee assignments were made at the February 1 meeting of the Williamson County Child Welfare Board.

A new committee called the Board Members' Committee was appointed to keep track of board members and keep them up-to-date on the board's business. Members of this new group are Charles Wright (chairman), Katie Green and Vi Hundley.

Jerry Goree, Faye Johnson and staff member Ron Massey were appointed to the Budget Committee.

The Special Times Committee was given the duty of planning and preparing for Christmas and other special occasions. Appointments to this committee are Shirley Schwartz (chairman), Ann Rios, Senora Ross, staff member Norma Bland and staff member Margaret Wilson.

Clothing Committee members are Barbara Pearce (chairman), Irene Arning, Rita Norman, Lupe Beltren and staff member John Monarchi.

In other business the board was informed that the Williamson County Commissioners had approved Vi Hundley as a new member of the board. They were also informed that Ron Massey, Department of Public Welfare Unit Supervisor for this area, will be interviewing for a new social worker to take the place of Tomi Parr, who resigned recently.

Chairman Linda Graves told the group that $57 had been deposited in the child welfare account to be used for foster children.

The group also learned that on January 1, the Department of Public Welfare began a new program of reimbursement to foster parents. The new rate of reimbursement is $4 per day for children up to age nine and $5 per day for children from 10-18. The former rate was $3 for all children, regardless of age.

OBITUARIES

Mrs. Ella Caskey

Mrs. Ella Caskey born October 11, 1881 in Burnet County, died Monday afternoon at the Wesleyan Home in Georgetown after an extended illness.

Funeral services conducted by Minister Cecil Alexander and Minister Larry Parsons were held Wednesday afternoon at the Florence Church of Christ. History and drama unite in UIL one-act play entry

The cast has been chosen for Georgetown High School's entry in the University Interscholastic League (UIL) One-Act Play Contest, "Mary of Scotland."

March 29 is the contest date, giving the GHS players approximately two months to get everything ready. Costumes (and for a period play that is no small matter), blocking, lines and performance must all be perfect by that date to bring home a coveted first place.

MISSY KINGERY will play the part of Mary Stuart and Beth Morse will play Elizabeth Tudor. Other members of the cast are Jim Smith (Jamie), Scott Smith (John Knox), Russell Caluette (Earl of Bothwell), Paul Minshew (Lord Burghley), Adrienne Holmans (Mary Beaton), Jan Rogers (Mary Livingstone), Pat Cox

Virginians rebelled against their British governor 100 years before the American Revolution.

(Mary Fleming), Rufus Tanksley (Maitland), Bob Brown (Morton), Karl Thomas (Lord Darnley) and Butch Pickens (Rizzio).

Understudies are Racheal Venable, Toni Cascio, Kathy Motheral, Jim Motheral and Stephanie Smith.

Members of the crew are Natalie Hubbard (sound), Ben Burgeson (lights) and Donna Holmans (properties).

"MARY OF SCOTLAND" is a historical play about the intrigue and plotting in the court of Mary Queen of Scots.

Mary Stuart arrives in Scotland at 19 to take the throne as queen. She immediately runs into opposition from John Knox, a supporter of the Protestant Reformation.

Mary, a Catholic, pledges to do her best to serve a country which is half-Protestant and half-Catholic.

IN ENGLAND Elizabeth Tudor plots to bring Mary's downfall and prevent her from becoming heir to the throne of England. Elizabeth and her advisor, Lord Burghley, spread rumors of Mary's wantonness and trick Mary into marrying the handsome drunkard, Lord Darnley, instead of Lord Bothwell, Mary's true love.

The marriage is Mary's downfall. Darnley is a weak and jealous king. One evening he and three others break into Mary's chambers and kill Rizzio, her beloved Italian secretary.

A short while later Darnley is murdered and Mary weds Bothwell.

THE SCOTTS rise up against Mary with the encouragement of John Knox and Mary's councilors. She is imprisoned in Scotland and later in England where she remains until her death. She does, however, manage to triumph over her enemies. She bears a son who will one day rule both Scotland and England.

The cast of "Mary of Scotland" have already begun rehearsals and the long hours of work and preparation necessary to do well in the UIL contest. They have taken on a big job with this play. It will take much work to reach that number one goal.

The Daumier was published as a lithograph in the March, 1855 issue of Actualities; Wolf's "Miss Alice Chase" is a 1910 Wood engraving. — Both prints courtesy LAKESIDE STUDIO

THE COUNTY 4-H FOOD SHOW will be held next Saturday, February 12, at the Granger Recreation Center. There are two divisions in the Food Show: Juniors, 9-12 years of age, and Seniors, 13 years old and up.

The categories of competition will be Main Dishes, Side Dishes, Desserts and Snacks & Beverages. Contestants from across the county will be judged on their menu, their knowledge of nutrition and the dish they enter.

THE BUILDING will open at 9:30 a.m. and judging will begin at 10:00 a.m. Awards will be presented at 11:30 a.m. and a tasting bee held at 12:00 noon.

Adults are not allowed in the judging area, but a program on cake decorating will be held for parents and visitors.

THE TOP 4 juniors and top 4 seniors will advance to the District 4-H Food Show to be held in Austin on April 16. These 8 youths will compete with the top winners from our 17 county districts.

Those 4-Hers entering the Food Show need to turn in their menu and a copy of their recipe to the County Extension Office by Monday, Feb. 7. Recipes will be duplicated and given out the day of the Food Show.

TENATIVE PLANS have been set for the 1977 District 10 4-H Horse Show to be held Saturday, June 18 in Bryan, Texas in Brazos County. Plans are also being made to conduct an invitational for Roping and English event classes on the night of Friday, June 17. A few horse stalls would be available for those wishing to compete in the invitational events and spend the night in Bryan.

The possibility of a two day District Horse Show has been discussed over the past years but nothing has ever materialized. We would like to hear from Williamson County 4-H Horse Club leaders, parents & members as to their opinion and feelings regarding a two day show. We need to know if you are in favor of a two day show and what days of the week would be best; a Thursday and Friday Show or a Friday and Saturday Show.

IF THE DISTRICT was to go to a two day show in the future, it would make for a slower paced show with the possibility of adding more events such as English events. But, a two day show could also limit participation to some extent due to the problems encountered with working parents and the inconvenience it would place on them.

The 65th Texas Legislature will be voting on many bills that will affect education. This is the second in this newspaper's series summarizing these bills.

By providing our readers with this service we hope our citizens will be informed and encouraged to participate in the legislative decision-making process. Write to your senator and representative and let them know how you feel about these bills.

LEGISLATION

REPRESENTING readers of this newspaper and their addresses are Senator Bill Patman, Senate Chambers, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711 and Representative Dan Kubiak, P. O. Box 2910, Austin, Texas 78767.

The following are bills filed relating to public schools.

SB 1 BY CREIGHTON and HB 22 BY SULLIVAN AND BROCK—appraisal by productivity.

These bills would provide that farm, ranch and forest lands be appraised in relationship to productivity. "Accepted income capitalization methods" applied to average net income would be utilized to determine the ad valorem tax value on such land.

HB 2 BY MASSEY—full state funding of the Foundation School Program.

HB 69 BY VALE—speech and hearing diagnostic and correction.

This bill would provide speech and hearing diagnostic and correction services by public schools to nonpublic school students attending a school within the public school district's boundaries.

HB 82 BY HUBENAK—educational equalization.

This bill proposes to create a Local Educational Equalization Fund, establish a maximum tax rate in each school district equal to the rate utilized by the school district for the 1973 tax year and free the assessment ratio at the level utilized for that same year. The local Educational Equalization Fund would be composed of the dedication of 1 cent of the current state sales tax. The distribution would be based on ADA without consideration for the relative local ad valorem tax wealth of the district.

HB 147 BY DELCO, MASSEY, AGNICH—100 percent state financing of the Foundation School Program, increased equalization, limited enrichment.

Along with 100 percent financing this bill adds provisions for increasing equalization aid and placing limits on the amount of local enrichment, with enrichment being defined to include the local share of equalization aid.

HB 161 BY VALE—allocations for capital outlay.

No state funds are presently provided to local school districts for capital expenditures such as facilities construction, site acquisition, etc. This bill provides an allotment for these expenses.

HB 162 BY KASTER—instruction in parenting. Bill 162 provides that the Texas Education Agency shall develop a two-quarter course of study in parenting to be taught by homemaker teachers or other teachers in districts without homemaker teachers. An advisory committee of 10 teachers shall be appointed by the commissioner to assist in curriculum development. Beginning in school year 78-79, a student must have credit for two quarter units in parenting to receive a high school diploma.

Other reports shall include summaries of legislation on school personnel, curriculum and average daily attendance (ADA).

Liberty Hill NEWS

BY HOWARD N. WILSON

A group of conservation-minded citizens in Austin has organized to raise the funds necessary to purchase a wilderness area which will be maintained as "The Wild Basin" for future generations.

This area contains all of the different types of plants and animals of the area and it will be available in its natural state for sightseers and campers. It will have no buildings or other structures to disrupt its natural state. This is certainly a worthy venture which will be of great benefit to the people of this area where open land is becoming more scarce with each passing day.

We have our Sculpture Park in Liberty Hill and we still have ample area for new homes and room to move around. We are blessed by still having clean air, clean water and elbow room.

Saturday, February 5, from 9 a.m. until dark Liberty Hill Market Day will be in progress on Liberty Hill Square, regardless of the weather. Here will be a big variety of goods, many handmade, on display in the covered booths for everyone to examine and buy while also having the opportunity to see all of the monumental sculptures which were produced during the International Sculpture Symposium. Everyone is cordially invited to come enjoy the friendly atmosphere of Liberty Hill. Once you come we feel sure you will want to come back!

There will be several non-profit organizations represented at Market Day, including the Panther Booster Club at booth No. 13 and the Girl Scouts. The Annual Girl Scout Cookie Sale started last Friday and the girls will be selling their cookies. Be sure to get some cookies and help to promote the activities of our Girl Scouts!

There will be an organizational meeting for everyone interested in "Little League" and "Babe Ruth League" baseball in our community. The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. on Saturday, February 12, in the open area of the High School. Officers for The Liberty Hill Baseball Club will be elected and Managers will be selected. Every interested parent, or anyone else interested in this activity, should be present to help make this program a big success. Your support is necessary, because without it the eligible, interested young men will be unable to play. Your ideas and help are URGENTLY NEEDED!

The Liberty Hill Garden Club will have their monthly meeting at the regular time on Wednesday, February 9, in The Fellowship Hall of the Rock Church of Christ. The subject of the meeting will be soil preparation for gardens, pest control and insecticides. There will be speakers from the Williamson County Extension Service. Be sure to come.

The Garden Club will have something new starting soon. A committee from the Garden Club will select yards of the month, one a club member's yard and one a non-member's yard. Each winner will have a plaque placed in his yard for one month. The Publicity Club Chairwoman, Dean Cluck, says, "Let's have some beautiful yards in and around Liberty Hill."

The Liberty Hill Boys' Varsity Basketball Team lost to Rogers, the co-leader of the district, by 59-47 last Tuesday evening. The Panthers looked good in spots, but they never could overtake the taller Eagles. Poor shooting once again hurt the Panthers, and they couldn't make points even when the Eagles made mistakes.

Scoring for Liberty Hill were Robert Stephens with 22 points, Donnie with 18 points, Roy Montemayor with 6 points and Travis Gilmore with 1 point. The Panthers are now 13-13 in season play and they are 1-8 District 28-A competition. They traveled to Thorndale for a game Friday evening.

Although the Pantherettes were defeated 67-12 by Rogers last Tuesday evening, they are still making progress and showing improvement as they gain experience this season. The defensive players in this game were Sandi Carlisle, Laura Hinesley, Terry Wiginton, Diane Williams and Cynthia Williamson, all of whom did a fine job against the strong Rogers' offense. Scoring for Liberty Hill were Shirl Holder with 6 points, Donna Holder with 4 points and Pat Sullins with 2 points.

Whiter than Snow...

"Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean; wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow." The Psalmist desired to be pure and white as snow, and knew that this could come only from God. Complete joy, and gladness of a pure heart can be yours too, when you walk close with the Lord.

TV Star Scene

Billie Jean King, the grande dame of tennis who knocked out Bobby "Sugar Daddy" Riggs on the court and scored points with women everywhere, is the subject of an upcoming ABC movie. Entitled "Billie Jean," the story of her career will be penned by Judith Parker... Beginning in April, short stories by nine American authors will be dramatized over PBS. The National Endowment for the Humanities is footing the $2 million plus bill for the programs, which will run from 28-55 minutes. Among the authors represented are F. Scott Fitzgerald, Sherwood Anderson, Ernest Hemingway, Ambrose Bierce, Stephen Crane and John Updike. Some of the performers who will appear are Ron Howard, Fritz Weaver, Irene Worth and John Houseman.

Carrie Fisher (daughter of Eddie Fisher and Debbie Reynolds) is still fooling around with older men, professionally at least. She's been signed to play Marie, the college student who becomes friendly with Doc Delaney (Laurence Olivier) in NBC's production of "Come Back, Little Sheba." Previously, Ms. Fisher seduced Warren Beatty in "Shampoo."

Roastees for upcoming Dean Martin Celebrity Roasts include Angie Dickinson, Peter Marshall and Ted Knight... Lee Van Cleef made his mark at a late age in the business in the spaghetti western factories. Well, all that leather slapping and sneering has paid off. Van Cleef has been signed for an NBC pilot, "Scanlon," about a U.S. Marshall. The only difference between this and his former work is this is set in contemporary times a la McCloud.

"Fellini -- Wizards, Clowns and Honest Liars," is an appropriate title for an upcoming special on the great Italian film maker. Set to release at the same time as his next picture, "Cassanova," the special will feature comments by Anita Ekberg, the sensation of "La Dolce Vita," Anthony Quinn, Marcello Mastroianni, Donald Sutherland, and Lina Wertmuller, who was formerly an assistant to secret agent, code named "Diamond Head," whose mission is to thwart the attempted theft of a 21st century chemical explosive. Also starring in the projected series are France Nuyen, Hawaiian actor Zulu and Ward Costello. Production is currently underway in Honolulu.

Fellini... Roy Thinnes is also slated for an NBC pilot, "Diamond Head," about a

Robert Young and Victoria Racimo have been added to the growing cast list of "The Rhinemann Exchange"... Shirley MacLaine returns to the small screen in another CBS special on March 5. She's lined up some interesting guests, most notably Les Ballets Trockadero de Monte Carlo, a unique dance company consisting solely of men, who also dance the women's roles -- on perfect points. They're hysterical, technically astounding and should steal the show... Barry Manilow, the high priest of pop, will head his first special on March 2 over ABC. His guest will be Penny Marshall.

Flip Wilson will be a pitchman for PBS, when he acts as spokesman for public television's Festival '77 campaign to raise funds. It's set for March 6-20... Arthur Hill and Barbara Barrie team for a made-for-TV movie set for next season, about a young woman's search for her natural mother... Football great Jim Brown will be featured on Police Story later this season.

"Good morning, I'm Johnny Carson"

The talk show king holds court

By DAN LEWIS

HOLLYWOOD -- The setting is familiar to millions of late-night television fanatics: the desk, the club chair, the love seat. And so is the man behind the desk, talking into the microphone: Johnny Carson.

Only this is 11:30 o'clock in the morning, not 11:30 at night. And the audience is highly restrictive, only 70 in number, seated with pad and pencils in hand, primed to fire questions at the major domo of "The Tonight Show" for these past 14 years.

Precisely at 11:30, Carson walks out. There's no Ed McMahon to give the clarion call, "Here'sss . . . John . . . eeee." No Doc Severinsen or band to play him aboard. Instead, he walks out and says, "Good morning, I'm Johnny Carson." Quickly, he invites questions.

"Why do you take so many vacations?" someone fires out.

"That didn't take long," Johnny answers. "I knew that one would come up."

Johnny explains that when he started the show in 1962, it was an hour and 45-minute nightly show, and he got six weeks vacation every year. He thought that was okay during the first five years.

"After a while," he continues, "you find you need more time to get your head together. After 14 years, I found that it was all I could handle. I really had to get the three-day weekend." (And the 14 weeks of vacation).

Next question: When do you plan to retire?

"In the middle of the show tonight," Carson jests, then turns serious. "I have no plans (to retire). If I got so tired, or if doing the show became such a drag, I'd quit. Or . . . if the audience doesn't show up and I found the show was going downhill." (There have been reports of ratings slippage, and concern about inroads by the competition, suggesting that contrary to past attitude, Carson was quite willing to meet the press en masse for the first time since moving the show from New York to California.) What would he do if he gave up "The Tonight Show"?

"I'm not sure what I'd do. I have no desire to do a weekly prime-time variety series. We do it all here (on the nightly show). It's really a composite of comedy, music, blackouts, sketches and conversation. I'd like to do maybe six or seven specials (in prime time)."

How come he's not touching up his hair anymore?

"I'm 51 years old. I just said the hell with it, let the gray come through." It's all gray now.

Is he sensitive to those who criticize the show for not being more purposeful and meaningful?

"I know we've been criticized for being superficial and not serious, and it (the show) is, and it's going to stay that way. I don't feel that I have to defend myself against those critics. We are a variety show -- entertainment. It's much easier to do a talk show -- and I don't particularly like that label for our show. All the host has to do is sit down with a clip board and sit back, ask a few questions and let the guest do all the talking. If you're going to do comedy, you can't get into big issues." Final judgement: The Tonight Show will remain frothy.

On the subject of raunchy material:

"Things are much looser today. Five years ago, we couldn't do any marijuana jokes. Sounds almost silly today. A lot of things have changed. We've opened up considerably. We have certain limits."

Sometimes, Carson conceded, he exceeds those limits, an instinctive reaction to a comment, or a situation when he wishes he hadn't done or said it.

"When you do comedy, you react automatically, then you say 'oh God, why did I say -- or do -- that?' But when it's done, it's done."

Except, there is one recourse. He can be blipped.

Later, Carson became philosophical about television standards. He referred to it as "capricious morality on television," explaining: "You can kill people, blow their heads off, but you can't show cleavage."

What about all this talk that he's a loner, hardly ever seen in public?

"I like my privacy. I'm on television so much, I want to retreat. I'm not a First Nighter (at show openings), although you sometimes have to do those things. I'm not the greatest mixer in the world. I guess I'd be that way even if I weren't on television."

Oddly, doing his act in Las Vegas, or occasionally at a music theater, is a necessary diversion for him. It's different, Carson explains, than television. It's performing.

Is there new comedy

JOHNNY CARSON: "I know we've been criticized for being superficial and not serious, and it is, and it's going to stay that way."

emerging?

"Sure. There's new subjects, so there's new comedy. We didn't have swine flu to talk about last year."

His best guests are the ones who enjoy themselves. Some people don't feel comfortable in this situation, no matter how big a star he or she might be.

"It always startles me," Carson relates, "to have a monumental star come out and I see his eyes jumping around wildly." Carson rolls his eyes, simulates a bewildered look to demonstrate his point.

One reporter observes he enjoys Carson when he's in trouble (on the show) and has to bail out.

"I seem to be at my best in those circumstances," Carson agrees. "You have to change around, call on your experience. The trick is to get a little silly, and physical."

His day normally starts about 10 a.m. He's on the phone with his producer, Fred de Cordova, to discuss that night's show. Carson reveals. He gets to the NBC studio in Burbank about 2 p.m., gets his monologue (the show has six writers) at 3. If there are any sketches on the program, Carson goes through one rehearsal. Taping is at 5:30 every night during the week.

The 'New Indians' fight for future

ROBERT REDFORD, author of "Riding the Outlaw Trail," published in the Nov. 1976 issue of National Geographic, again joins forces with them when he narrates "The New Indians," a National Geographic special airing over PBS.

Amid the destruction and despair of his people a century ago, the great Oglala Sioux holy man, Black Elk, had a vision. The fifth generation, he prophesized, would bring back the strength and pride of the Indian people.

It is now the era of the fifth generation, and in "The New Indians," the third National Geographic Special of the season, an attorney, a rock musician, a tribal chief and a young educational counselor revive their ancient heritage and look forward to an exciting future.

Narrated by Robert Redford and hosted by E.G. Marshall, "The New Indians" airs over most PBS stations on Feb. 15. Here is an idea of some of the people you'll meet.

Susan Supernaw -- a young Creek education counselor from the "Uptown" neighborhood of Chicago, she travels to the Stoney Indian Reserve in the Canadian Rockies with eight Indian friends to attend the Indian Ecumenical Conference. Susan joins some 2,000 Indians from 50 tribes in North America to learn the ancient traditions of Indian culture, which she has never really known.

James Sewid -- a chief of the Kwakiutl Indians, a tribe whose rich culture is highlighted by elaborate ceremonies. One ceremony basic to this tribe, the potlatch, was once banned by the Canadian Government. Since the Canadian ban on the potlatch was lifted in 1951, Sewid has devoted his life to reviving the Kwakiutl's tribal ceremonies, dances and totem pole art. Sewid's family members perform their ancestral dance called "Animal Kingdom" in the program.

Claudeen Arthur -- a young Navajo attorney who joined a legal services team for her people two years ago, fresh from law school. In the sun-drenched reservation town of Shiprock, New Mexico, Claudeen meets with her clients -- Navajo men and women with all kinds of problems and little experience with lawyers. "The New Indians" shows her efforts to save a Navajo sheepherder's land from strip-mining.

Stephen Tiger -- a young Miccosukee Indian whose tribe retreated into the isolation of the Florida Everglades when the Federal Government demanded they move to lands west of the Mississippi River in the early 1800's. Today, Stephen's people are the first tribe to achieve total self-government, and have established their own first-rate school system, and administration and health services. Miccosukee children now learn both modern and traditional ways of life. Stephen, a rock musician, himself returns to his homeland after ten years, hoping that through his music and art he can find expression for his unique Indian heritage.

KLRN begins fund drive for new transmitter

The Southwest Texas Public Broadcasting Council, licensee of KLRN-TV in San Antonio, has announced the beginning of a Capital Fund Drive to help finance the construction of a second transmitting station near Austin. It is designed to improve signal quality, according to Tom McCrummen Jr., Chairman of the Council's Board of Trustees.

At the same time, McCrummen announced that heading up the year-long, one-time drive will be Ray C. Hall, owner of Ray Hall Advertising and Public Relations of Austin. The recipient of numerous professional awards in advertising and public relations, Hall is the immediate past president of the Austin Advertising Club. He has served as an officer of the Austin chapter of Public Relations Society of America and Sigma Delta Chi, Society of Professional Journalists.

THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION has already granted permission to the Council for the construction of a new UHF station on Channel 18. The antenna and transmitter will be located near Austin in order to improve the present KLRN-TV coverage within the city and to the North. The present antenna and transmitter, broadcasting on Channel 9, is located near New Braunfels and was designed to cover the cities of San Antonio and Austin with a good quality, Class A signal. However, because of some problems principally related to terrain, the signal did not reach into either city with the predicted signal quality. In fact, some parts of Austin and the northern part of Travis County receive little or no signal at all. The result has been a limitation of public television programming to a large part of Central Texas.

Unfortunately, say station officials, many rural and lower income areas, to which no cable service is available, cannot receive a useable signal without the help of an outside antenna. THE CAPITAL FUND DRIVE, with a goal of $330,000 will help provide the necessary matching funds for an equipment grant which the Council had been awarded in the amount of $400,000. Advance pledges of support have already accounted for $30,000 of the goal.

The activation of the new channel in Austin will expand educational and public television coverage to the entire Austin-Travis County-Central Texas area. In addition, it will give more children in classrooms and at home access to the important children's programming which is a regular feature of KLRN's schedule. It also will allow 23 additional school districts in Central Texas to participate in classroom TV programming.

Once the Austin area coverage problem has been solved with the activation of the new Channel 18, said McCrummen, the Council will then turn its attention to the relocation of the present transmitter and antenna to a site closer to San Antonio to improve the reception problem in that city and the Bexar County area.

G'town coaches whipped by girls

THE ALL-GIRL exhibition basketball team called the Red Heads was in Georgetown Thursday night and, to answer the big question, all seven did have fire engine red hair.

Just having red hair wasn't all though, those girls could handle a basketball like Jimmy Carter can handle a peanut.

THEY DID EVERYTHING from dribbling with their knees to shooting with their feet as they played an exhibition game against the Georgetown school coaches and friends.

The Red Heads played the Twinkle Toes Twelve to raise money for Georgetown athletic fund.

GEORGETOWN High School coach Les Johnson said, "We really enjoyed the game, they put on a fantastic show."

The school's profit from concessions and their share of the gate came to $760, enough to completely finish paying for hurdles for the track teams.

"That's what we were working for," said Johnson. HIGH SCORERS for the Twinkle Toes Twelve were David Greeno with 12 points and Mac Rowlett with 6 points.

Playing for the Twelve were Orbrey Holden, Richard Steinhauser, Les Johnson, David Greeno, Mac Rowlett, Jeff Henry, Casey Winters, Dan Noll, Ed Ruby, Danny Spradley, Alan Perin, Steve Phillips, Grady Roller and Jack Gray.

THOSE 7 GIRLS really had hustle. After playing the first half they put on a half time show of trick shots, fancy dribbling and juggling basketballs. Then they went into the stands to sell and autograph souvenir programs before the second half.

The Twinkle Toes, well they rested during the half.

Southwestern University's Pirates, now back on a winning streak, will face stern tests Saturday and Monday when they play the two leading teams in the Big State Conference, Texas Lutheran College and St. Mary's University.

The Bucs take on the TLC Bulldogs in Seguin Saturday at 7:30 p.m. and then play St. Mary's Rattlers at 7:30 Monday night in San Antonio.

SOUTHWESTERN came close to defeating both teams in games in Georgetown two weeks ago, losing to TLC 53-49 and then to St. Mary's 50-49 in a game finished under protest by the Bucs.

The outcome of that protest, concerning a ruling on a technical foul called and then removed against St. Mary's, is still before the conference decision makers. Southwestern Coach John Edwards has requested that the game not be counted in conference standings.

The Pirates warmed up in San Antonio Monday night as they topped Trinity University 80-62 with four Bucs hitting in double figures.

STEVE DOERING led the onslaught with 20 points, hitting seven of eight field goal attempts and six of seven free throws. Tommy Johnson followed with 17 points, while big Phillip Sewell hit 13 and Jeff Weaver 11.

Danny Ivey had a big night for Trinity as he poured in 32 points, hitting 11 of 20 from the field and 10 of 12 from the free throw line while grabbing 14 rebounds. Darrell Williams and Erik Johnson had 10 each for the Tigers.

Sewell and Joe Buchanan led rebounders with 10 and nine rebounds.

Southwestern had a red-hot 59 percent field goal accuracy compared to 33.3 percent by the Tigers.

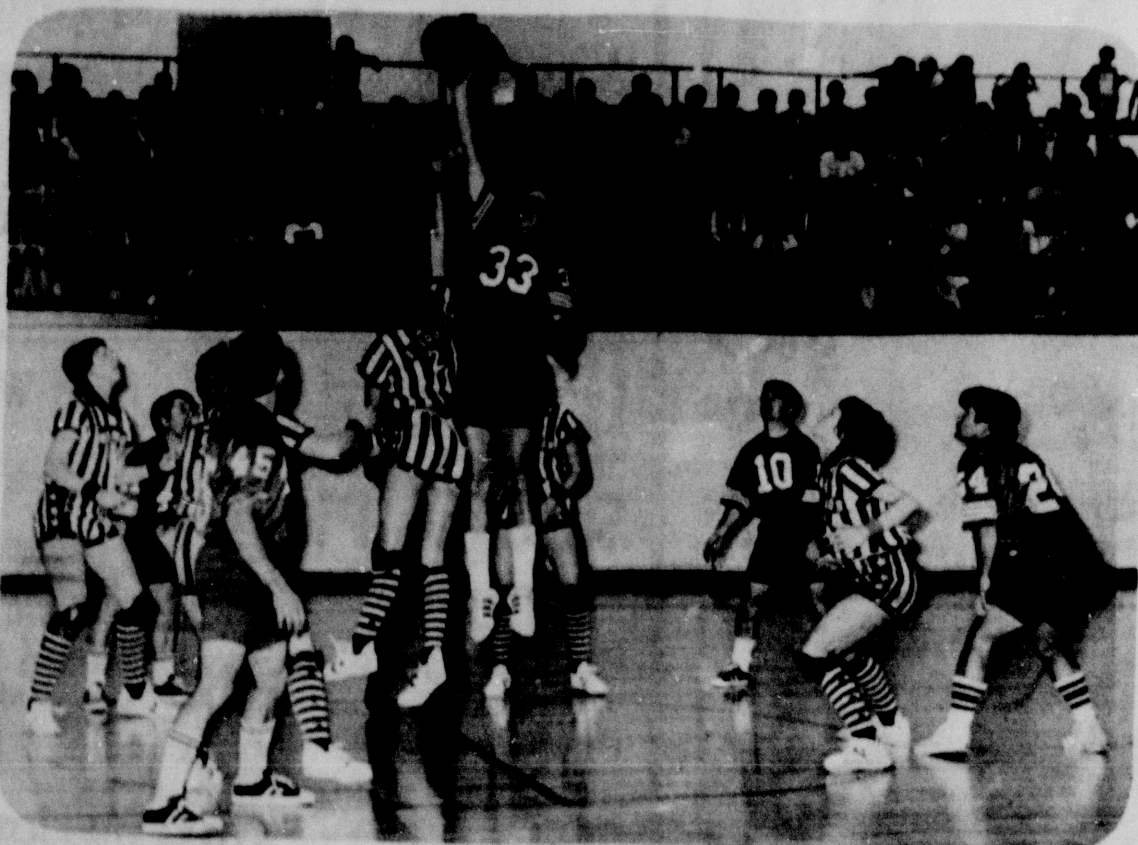

Southwestern has won 11 games and lost eight this season, and owns a 2-3 mark in conference play.

SCORING LEADERS this season are Johnson with 13.5 points per game, Sewell with 12 points per game, Buchanan with almost 11 per game, Weaver (six games) with a nine point average, Mike Minks with eight, Kenny Dennis with 7.5, and Doering with 6.5. Buchanan and Sewell lead rebounders with 139 grabs apiece as the Bucs have been able to out-rebound opponents 689-649 through the season. Following games this weekend with TLC and St. Mary's, the Bucs will have four regular season contests left with the final game here Feb. 23.

DAVID GREENO, (23) head track coach for the high school, demonstrates his famous hook shot. Greeno was high scorer for the Twinkle Toes Twelve with 12 points.

GEORGETOWN Junior High School Coach Alan Perin (33) gets the jump on the Red Heads in Thursday nights game in the high school gym.

SU women take revenge

Whip St. Mary's in overtime

The Southwestern women's basketball team avenged an earlier loss to St. Mary's by beating the Rattler women 47-43 in overtime in Georgetown Thursday night.

THE PIRATES had to hold off a rally by the fast-closing San Antonians to win the game.

St. Mary's had come back from a 22-16 halftime deficit to tie the score at the end of regulation play.

The Rattlerettes had won an earlier contest in San Antonio 56-46 over Southwestern. Sharon Eoff led Southwestern with 12 points while Risa

Marshall hit 10, Tracy Strane nine, and Debbie Hansen and Janice Doughty six apiece.

EDELIA LIRA hit 14 points to pace the St. Mary's attack followed by Gray with 12 and Hegeman with 11.

The Southwestern women, now 7-6 for the season, host St. Edward's University in Sid W. Richardson Physical Education Center at 7 p.m. Saturday, then play Texas A&I in Kingsville Tuesday night and return for a home game against Incarnate Word College of San Antonio at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Richardson Center.

Eagles to face Chaps

After falling to Lockhart last Tuesday in overtime, Georgetown will travel to Westlake Tuesday night for a 7:30 p.m. game.

The Eagles worst defeat of the season came against Westlake, when the Chaparrals slaughtered Georgetown, 90-49.

Against Lockhart, the Eagles evened their district record at 5-5 with an 89-85 loss in overtime.

The Eagles took a three-point halftime lead after jumping to a 23-16 margin in the first quarter, but the Lions evened it at 59-59 at the end of three periods.

In the fourth quarter, each team scored 18 to send the Eagles into their first District

12AAA overtime game this season.

Lockhart outscored Georgetown 12-8 in the overtime period to win it.

Mark Edwards fell from third to fourth place in the district individual scoring race, despite a 22-point performance. He moved down a spot because Lockhart's Siemering, who was fourth, scored 34.

Ronnie Wagner and Joe Jenkins had 18 each for the Eagles, with David Giese chipping in 10 points.

Beef Short Course set for April 4-5

Discussions on breeding and marketing of cattle will be among the highlights of the twenty-seventh annual Beef Cattle Short Course at Texas A&M University, April 4-5.

Among featured speakers will be Dr. Peter Chenoweth of Colorado State University and Dr. K. C. Williamson of Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, points out Dr. Dennis Herd, beef cattle specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

CHENOWETH, an authority on reproductive performance of beef cattle, will discuss breeding soundness in bulls as well as libido and mating behavior in bulls. Williamson, with years of experience in selling cattle for top dollar in Virginia, will discuss new potentials in cattle marketing.

Other topics to be discussed during the short course include liver fluke and stomach worm control, prospects for cattle tick control, status of the brucellosis control program, cattle price outlook, Rumensin as a new feed additive, nutritional value of large hay packages and improving rebreeding performance in first-calf heifers. Talks dealing with range nutrition of cattle and pasture production should also be of interest to producers, notes Herd.

The short course is a part of the annual Texas Animal Agriculture Conference, which features individual sessions on beef cattle, dairy cattle, swine and horses as well as special programs on range, pasture and forage production and wildlife management.

ALSO FEATURED will be an equipment and machinery exhibit and a trade show, adds Herd.

Babe Ruth League is organizing

The Georgetown Babe Ruth League will hold its organizational meeting, Wednesday, Feb. 9, at 7:30 p.m. at the Fire Hall on Main Street.

The main topic of the gathering will be the new 13 year-old league.

Interested parents and supporters are encouraged to attend.

Girls end season

The Eagle girls ended their season Thursday night with a 52-51 loss to Westlake.

The loss dropped the girl's district record to 3-3 to give them a second-place tie with the Chaparrals.

Lampasas won District 12AAA with a 6-0 record, including a 39-37 win over Georgetown Monday.

Georgetown led by three going into the final period, but a 13-9 Chap advantage took the game away.

Denise Babicki scored a season-high 37 points to lead Georgetown, with Jan Wakefield scoring 13.

Georgetown finished with a season record of 14-13.

SAVING TIPS on electric heating

1. Keep heating equipment at top operating efficiency. Have it checked seasonally by qualified serviceman.
2. Set thermostat at 70° or lower. Lower to 50°- 60° if you'll be away several days.
3. Weatherstrip doors and windows; caulk cracks to prevent drafts and warm air loss.
4. Check the filter every 30 days on forced-air systems. If filter is permanent, clean it by manufacturer's directions; if it's disposable, replace if dirty.
5. Thorough home insulation keeps the warmth in, cuts energy use. Can pay for itself by lowering heating (and cooling) costs.
6. When fireplace is not in use, keep damper closed.
7. On sunny days open draperies, blinds to let in warmth of sun.
8. Open outside doors as little as possible.
9. Keep furniture, draperies away from air outlets and returns so air will flow easily. Clean often.

Conserve electricity and you help conserve one or more of the fuels needed to produce it. Conserve fuels and you help assure that there will be enough to meet essential needs for electricity in the future.

REMEMBERING...

By BILL BROOKS

THE FISHING TRIP
I had fished lots in the creek near our house but one day Dad said we were going on a real fishing trip. He had heard about a good place over in another county. It was said to be a beautiful tree-lined river that had real, honest-to-goodness, clear running water in it with perch and bluegills as big as a man's hand and catfish that could snap a 20-pound test line slickern's whistle.

Dad said he was just going to close the blacksmith shop down for about a week since it was off season anyway and we could just go down there, camp out and have ourselves a real good time.

We didn't have a car like lots of folks but we had an old pre-war one-ton chevy flat bed truck that somehow kept going due to Dad's mechanical ability and a large quantity of bailing wire. The truck had short side boards and we tied a wagon sheet over them. Under the sheet was placed food, bedrolls, fishing gear and three wide-eyed youngsters.

We left before sun up. The two things I remember about the trip down was the bumpy road and a jar of rancid shrimp (Dad said rancid shrimp was just about the best catfish bait you could use) breaking right near where I was trying to sleep. Pu-weee!

We got there and it was every bit as pretty as we had imagined. We stopped at a grassy place under huge pecan trees near a little waterfall and a deep blue pool of rippling water. Mother made camp while Dad readied the fishing lines. Soon we were sitting on the bank watching cork floats bob up and down hoping for a bite.

We caught quite a few that first day and we kept them all in a big wash tub full of water. We could watch them swim around and we would reach our hands down in the water to touch their slick sides and try to catch them. We gave certain ones names.

The next day Mother was going to fry some of them for our lunch. What? Kill our fish? "No Mama, please don't!" "We wanna take 'em home and raise 'em."

We were soon tired of fishing so we went wading in a shallow place downstream where we tried to catch frogs and turtles. We picked cattails and that evening we caught a fruit jar full of fireflies. We sat around a campfire after dark singing songs, then Mother read from the Bible.

It must have been long after midnight when Dad shook us awake to tell us we'd have to leave. A local farmer had come down and told him it was fixing to rain and the river would most likely come down out of banks and wash our camp away.

We hurried to gather up things as the wind started blowing and lightning streaked across the sky. Dad asked what we wanted to do with the tub full of fish. "Put 'em back in the river!" My big brother and my Dad carried the tub down to the river and poured it out and I was glad the fish were going back to their friends.

Comparisons would show G'town sales up...if

Comparison of retail sales figures from the third quarters of 1975 and 1976 would have shown Georgetown's sales up about 6.65 percent instead of down 6.53 percent if a tax return representing approximately $5,000 worth of sales had not been kicked out of a computer, the State Comptroller's Office reported this week.

THE COMPARISON, requested from the Comptroller's Office following a Jan. 24 analysis of county retail sales for the third quarter of 1976, showed Georgetown with $40,033.24 worth of sales subject to tax between July and September of last year. That figure is $2,335.97 down from the one from the same period of the year before, $37,697.27.

But Larry Floyd of the Comptroller's Office explained that the drop was probably due to the rejection of an improperly prepared tax return on about $5,000 worth of sales from a Georgetown source. "The computer kicked that one out, but it will probably be corrected and applied to the next quarter's figures," said Floyd. He explained that if that happened, the figures for the final quarter of 1976 might show an abnormal-looking jump in Georgetown's sales.

COMPARISONS were made for Georgetown, Taylor, and Round Rock on the basis of retail sales subject to the state and city sales tax.

On that basis, Taylor's sales were up just .34 percent (from $53,003.31 to $53,181.30). But Round Rock's sales went an impressive 25.56 percent, from $14,427.41 to $18,114.35.

The Jan. 24 analysis showed Williamson County with $51,997,672 worth of gross retail sales during the third quarter. Comparison showed that the $17,167,994 of that amount subject to tax was up about 6.8 percent from the figure for the third quarter of 1975.

COMPTROLLER Bob Bullock said that gross retail sales in Texas jumped to $34.5 billion for the third quarter of 1976, a 13 percent increase over the same period for the previous year.

Harris, the state's most populous county, led all others in gross retail sales with a total of $8.6 billion, a 13 percent increase. Dallas County was second with $5.4 billion, up 18 percent, followed by Tarrant County with gross sales of just over $2 billion, up 12 percent.

Bexar County's gross retail sales also were up 12 percent for a total of $1.5 billion for the quarter.

In-state firms accounted for $32.2 billion of the sales, while out-of-state firms chalked up $2.3 billion in sales in Texas during the period, according to the analysis.

Get child's measles immunization

Measles immunization time is now — for children who have not received the vaccine, Carla Shearer, a health education specialist advises.

Measles ("10-day" or "red" measles, or technically, rubella) is considered the most serious of the common childhood diseases — and it is highly contagious for about four days before, and four days after, the rash appears, she said.

Complications can include ear infections, pneumonia, deafness, blindness, encephalitis or other forms of brain disease — or death.

Before the vaccine became available in 1963, approximately 400 persons died of measles each year in the United States. By 1974, the number was cut to 20, she said.

"Actually, with the measles vaccine, there is no need for a child to suffer from measles at all, but outbreaks still occur. Texas reported 266 cases last year," she said.

Often pre-school children account for many cases.

Texas law requires certain immunizations for all children entering Texas schools. Because many parents wait until immunization is required, pre-schoolers are left unprotected.

One-year of age has been the usual time for measles immunization — but last October, the American Academy of Pediatrics recommended delaying until 15 months of age for infants in communities where the disease is not prevalent.

In the event of measles outbreaks, the Academy recommends the vaccine be given any time after six months of age — followed by a second inoculation after 15 months of age, Ms. Shearer said.

"Measles live-virus vaccine is effective and safe. However, as with other vaccines slight reactions are possible — such as fever or mild rash. If fever is high or persists — or other symptoms appear, consult a physician," she added.

Early signs of measles include a runny nose, watery eyes, cough and fever. After three or four days, a blotchy rash appears on the face, then becomes generalized — and last usually four to six days, the specialist said.

Co. law has busy week

Williamson County Sheriff's officers had their hands full this past week, mostly with thefts and burglaries in rural areas, while Georgetown police had an unusually quiet week with only one offense reported.

The Sheriff's Dept. received a report late this week that $250 worth of Craftsman tools in a red toolbox had been stolen from a construction site on Rt. 4, in Leander.

COMPLAINANT Robert Payne of Round Rock said the tools were probably taken sometime Monday or Tuesday. Deputy Oscar Dungan is investigating the case.

Thursday, David M. Brown of 410 Riviera Springs reported that a spare tire, a wheel, and one hubcap valued at a total of $12 were stolen from his First pickup between 7 and 8 p.m. Wednesday while the vehicle was parked behind the First Baptist Church in Leander.

BROWN SAID the tire was a brand new 750x16 equipment tire mounted on an aluminum-colored wheel with a demountable rim. The hubcap, he reported, is black and chrome-colored. Deputy Jim Boutwell was assigned to the case.

Tuesday deputies received a report that a 7 Rystal-brand Citizens Band radio, serial number 6666, had been stolen from a car sometime that day while the vehicle was parked on the Leander High School parking lot.

Complainant Chris Jeffrey of 3419 Shenandoah in Leander said the auto had also been vandalized the previous day, with Cola poured across the windshield, air let out of the tires, and a coil wire pulled the distributor cap. Deputy Jim Wilson investigated the matter.

Another theft was reported Tuesday.

Complainant Bill Hurst of Austin said 55 old vehicle batteries were stolen from behind his Hurst Automotive shop on Highway 183 in Jollyville sometime last weekend. Deputy Wilson was assigned to that case.

Tuesday a case of indecent exposure was reported from Leander.

A resident there said a heavy-set Spanish man had repeatedly followed his 17-year-old daughter from Leander High School to a service station and back, continually exposing himself to her. That matter is still under investigation.

THE BURGLARY OF a residence near Schwertner was reported Tuesday as well.

Complainant Gladys Goode said her home on FM 487 just west of Schwertner was burglarized sometime Tuesday. Investigators said someone entering the house through an unlocked screen door did substantial damage to a wooden door in the house but did not disturb or steal anything else.

YET ANOTHER burglary was reported Monday.

A Round Rock construction company reported that a $360 gas range and a $40 stove hood were both stolen from inside a house under construction at 1209 Meadows Drive near Round Rock.

The range was described as a 30-inch, avocado green Caloric Gasrange, serial number 2977576. The hood was described as being also 30-inches wide and avocado green.

Investigators said burglars had broken a window in the front of the house to gain entry.

Georgetown police were nearly involved in a wild chase Thursday and investigated a theft that same day.

The chase began about 1 a.m. Thursday when the Temple police department asked local officers' help in stopping a fugitive while Chevrolet Malibu running at speeds in excess of 100 miles an hour and without lights, southbound on Interstate Highway 35.

OFFICER Rudy Aleman, along with Sheriff's Deputies William Chandler and David Brown and later a Round Rock police patrol unit, set up an interception post on I-35.

Before local officers spotted the vehicle it made a U-turn and headed back north on the highway, still running above 100 miles per hour.

After one Temple police vehicle and two Belton patrol units were wrecked in the pursuit, the fugitive car finally rolled over in Belton and the driver was apprehended and placed in jail.

ONE OFFICER sustained minor injuries in the melee.

Lee Morgan of 508 Cedar in Georgetown Thursday reported theft of two $23 disposals from each apartment of a duplex under construction at 806 Judy.

He said there had been no forced entry. The disposals he reported, had been in the duplex since early in December. Officer Linda Rumbaugh is investigating.

America exhibit opens at the LBJ Library

A new exhibit opened February 4 at the LBJ Library's South Gallery, AMERICA: FROM AMERIGO VESPUCCI TO THE LOUISIANA PURCHASE.

The exhibit is a cross section of American historical masterpieces, such as a letter in Amerigo Vespucci's hand dated 1476 giving an account of his first voyage to America, the first Latin edition of the celebrated "Columbus Letter" (1493), the first printing of the Declaration of Independence (1776) and a Mohawk Indian Deed (1714).

Also included in the exhibit is a sculptured portrait of Benjamin Franklin by the French sculptor Houdon (1779), a letter from Lord Cornwallis to General Washington asking for surrender terms (1781), and a proclamation dated 1803 concluding a treaty with France that more than doubled the size of the United States (a million square miles) at about four cents an acre — The Louisiana Purchase.

THE EXHIBITION contains 150 items in the media of letters, books, drawings, maps, globes, paintings and early navigational tools.

The exhibition is made available through the courtesy of the Pierpont Morgan Library, New York City and through a grant from the Texas Commission on the Arts and Humanities.

AMERICA will be on view through March 3, 1977. Museum hours are 9 to 5 daily. Admission is free.

First case for new D.A. Ed Walsh

Jury ponders murder charge

Thomas Lee Washington, a 34 year old Taylor mechanic, stood trial for murder in 26th District Court in Georgetown last week.

A verdict had not been rendered by the 7 woman, five man jury at press time Friday evening, but was expected later Friday night.

The murder trial is the first trial by Ed Walsh as the new District Attorney in Williamson County.

Pro-beer ad found wrong

A full-page advertisement in The Williamson County SUN this week favoring the sale of beer and wine in Georgetown contains errors and is misleading, a check by The Sunday SUN has revealed.

COMPARING ARRESTS for drunkenness in Taylor and Georgetown, the ad claimed that 167 such arrests were made in Taylor and 204 such arrests in Georgetown during 1976. The Taylor figure, Taylor Police Chief A. O. "Pete" Schier told The SUN, did not include arrests of drunk drivers. When these were added Taylor had 236 arrests. The 204 arrest figure given for Georgetown included all alcohol-related arrests, including those for drunk driving.

Thus, the true number of alcohol-related arrests in the two towns should have been stated as: Taylor, 236; Georgetown, 204.

THE ADVERTISEMENT also claimed that legalizing of beer sales in Burnet had resulted in a dramatic gain in income tax refunds. The ad said that Burnet received $11,000 in refunds in 1970, the year before beer was legalized. "For the year of 1974, with the legal sale of beer, the state returned $72,000, a $61,000 increase over 1971," the ad claimed.

The State Comptroller's department told The SUN Wednesday afternoon that Burnet got $55,188 in refunds in 1971, $73,214 in refunds in 1974. The gain was $18,026, dramatically less than the claimed $61,000 gain.

HOW DID Georgetown fare in that same time frame, without legalizing beer? In 1971 Georgetown's refund was $79,028. In 1974 it got back $116,470, a gain of $37,442.

Georgetown area citizens were to vote in a beer-wine for off-and-on-premises consumption issue Saturday.

Washington was indicted for murder in the shooting of Michael Miles on July 19, 1975, outside of the High Life Club on Walnut Avenue in Taylor. Mitchell was a 24 year old lieutenant stationed at Fort Hood near Killeen, Texas.

Washington has been out on bond since July of 1975, but the case was never tried until Walsh took office last month.

The defense attorney, Geoffrey A. Fitzgerald of Temple, said in his argument before the jury that there is no question of the fact that Washington shot and killed the man, it is just a question of intent.

Three eye witnesses testified before the jury during the 5-day trial.

The jury can declare one of three verdicts: guilty of murder, guilty of voluntary manslaughter or not guilty.

If convicted of murder, Washington faces a maximum sentence of life imprisonment.

If convicted of voluntary manslaughter, Washington could get a maximum sentence of 2-20 years imprisonment and possible fine of up to $10,000.

The defense attorney praised Walsh, saying that no matter what the verdict is, Williamson County is lucky to have a District Attorney that is not afraid to prosecute.

Most District Attorneys would bargain off a close case like this, said Fitzgerald. "A case like this is a tough one and could go either way."

Most new prosecutors would be scared to do it, they would have tried an easy case at first, like a marijuana bust because their reputation is at stake.

Both attorneys presented their final arguments to the jury on Friday.

If a verdict of guilty is declared by the jury, the jury will meet again next week to decide the sentence.

Community Development plan clears first hurdle, faces next

Georgetown's application for $228,000 in federal Community Development funds for 1977 cleared its first hurdle this week and now faces its second.

The application won unanimous approval Wednesday from a committee of the Capital Area Planning Council (CAPCO), an Austin-based "council of governments."

CAPCO REVIEWS applications for various types of federal funds to certify that they comply with regional development plans. Favorable review can be very important for such application.

City Manager Leo Wood said the application was then rushed Thursday to the San Antonio Area headquarters of the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), where it will undergo further scrutiny.

"I checked with HUD Friday morning and they said everything was in order and the application is in processing," said Wood, adding, "HUD seemed very pleased after general observation of our application."

Georgetown has already gotten $456,000 in Community Development funds over the past two years and hopes to get that much more this year and the following two.

All of the first year's grant went to construction of a raw water intake structure at the site of the future Northfork Lake. Most of the second year's allocation went to drainage projects and construction of a new Georgetown Neighborhood Center.

THIS YEAR the money would go to more drainage projects, acquisition of a sanitary landfill site, and extension of a water main from the intake structure to the site of a future water treatment plant.

The city should get final word on this year's Community Development application by mid-April.

EVEN PRAYER didn't help the Twinkle Toes Twelve last Thursday night. Seriously, Georgetown High School freshmen coach Ed Ruby (kneeling) did get bounced around a little playing basketball against those big red headed girls. (See story and pictures page 8).

Council to set city election

Three seats up for grabs April 2

The Georgetown city council is scheduled to call an April 2 election to fill three council seats when it meets at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the council room at City Hall, 103 W. Seventh St.

UP FOR GRABS will be the positions now held by council members Harry Gold, J. D. Winger, and William C. "Wiggie" Shell. Each position carries a two-year term.

Also on the council's agenda are:
• Consideration ordinance raising water and tap rates as well as filing charges for subdivision plats. Under the proposed ordinance, customer inside city limits would pay a dime per month more for 10,000 gallons of water while those outside town would pay $6.40 more for the same amount. The charge for each type of water and sewer tap would also be hiked $100. Developers would pay a $50-per-lot fee for each plat they file, at the time the plat is finally approved. Since the proposal is in the form of an emergency ordinance, there will be only one reading.

• Engineering and other types of reports on the feasibility of locating a 2½ million-gallon water storage tank about five miles northwest of Georgetown. The city administration may ask permission to advertise for bids to construct the tank, which it is estimated would cost $300,000.

• EXAMINATION of the request by the Williamson County Commissioners' Court to lease land in San Gabriel Park for location of a new Livestock Show and Fair building. The Commissioners had originally sought a 99-year lease on the land for a token annual fee, but may now ask to purchase the property.

• Consideration of a name for the new Georgetown Neighborhood Center located at Montgomery and Eighth streets. Representatives of Williamson-Burnet County Opportunities, Inc., the local Community Action agency which will operate the center, will be on hand to discuss the question.

Week's news in a nutshell

People all over the country are still talking about President Carter's fire-side chat. Most agree that he was just a little short of superb. However, whether he influenced many people to turn their thermostats to 65 during the day and on down to 55 at night remains to be proven. Meanwhile, there has been a thaw in some sections of the frozen north and relief not spelled R-O-L-A-I-D may be here to stay for a while.

THE ROUND ROCK LEADER had a by-lined indepth story on Williamson County's bail bondsman situation, revealing that the celebrated Frank Smith of Austin, now having his troubles in more ways than one, owes the county considerable money but is deemed fully able to pay. Smith, the story relates, has been making surety bonds in this county since he entered the business about three years ago. Surety bonds posted by professional bail bondsmen carry a guarantee they will be paid (by the bondsman) if they are forfeited, that is, if the accused fails to appear when called. Bondsmen charge 10 to 15 percent for their services, generally, although this can vary widely.

Mexico's President Jose Lopez Portillo will visit President Carter February 14, becoming the first foreign head-of-state to meet with the new U.S. leader. News of the impending visit came as an announcement was made that Mexico would sell the U.S. a considerable quantity of natural gas and crude oil, badly needed by this country.

Porno shops were given the green light in Austin when a jury failed to define community standards on obscenity in a recent case.

A COUPLE OF ALICE, TEXAS TEENAGERS were picked up in Waco early this week carrying half a million dollars, which they said they dug up on a ranch in south Texas. By week's end a third boy showed up and confirmed the story, all three boys were out of jail and there is a possibility that they may claim successfully, at least a portion of the money.

KGTV-AM will broadcast Houston Astro daylight games, KGTV-FM the night contests during the forthcoming season. Manager Gary Seaman said this week. Last year the Georgetown station aired the Texas Rangers.

Pollster Louis Harris told Congress Thursday that the public rates congressional ethics poorly and wants fuller financial disclosure, limitations on moonlighting and restrictions on "slush funds". In the poll, taken last January, consumer groups and television news tied for first place with 66 percent rating. Newspapers were next with a 63. Congress was far down the light with 53 but not so low as major corporations (45) or organized labor (34). The majority of those sampled believed Congressmen should devote their full time to their congressional jobs.

PRESIDENT CARTER'S PLAN to send $50 to practically everyone living in this country was given a cool reception by Congress and Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns pointed out that the government would need to borrow money if the plan is carried out — so, what's new?

And... that bond issue to buy the waterworks and fund a sewer system at Cedar Park was busted by the voters, about 2 to 1. The city is expected to try again at an early date.

the passing glance

By Don Scarbrough

Richard Geer dropped by the SUN office Saturday morning last week and invited me to attend an awards program for Georgetown's new soccer league at the Georgetown Community Center that evening. He didn't say, as many do, "and bring your camera," but I decided to take one to snap pictures of the youngsters receiving their awards.

SO, I WENT and took my personal camera. Just before the program I moved a chair out in front of the rostrum by about 15 feet, focused my camera for that distance, and to be sure that everything was in good working order, snapped the shutter. That was fine. Now to advance the film for the next shot. My, the film advanced easily. Too easily? Yes, too easily! No film in the camera, the dumbest trick that a photographer can pull.

The classic way to handle that embarrassment would be to sit there and go through the process of taking all the pictures, then later claim the guy in the dark room ruined the whole roll. That's not what I did though. I just sneaked out.

SATURDAY NIGHT, well after The Sunday SUN went to press, our citizens knew the results of the latest attempt to legalize beer and wine in Georgetown and a large section of middle-Williamson County. I voted against the proposition because I think we have troubles enough as it is. I do think we pulled out of this divisive issue without many scars and I congratulate both sides for the achievement. I have seen these elections do real and lasting damage to community relations.

R. B. Lewis whose home is in the rural section of Georgetown's precinct said Wednesday morning as he made a special trip to the SUN office, "I've been living here since 1900 and Georgetown has been dry since that time. I just hope that I can die and it still be dry!"

It's up to you!

Many movies made in Austin and San Antonio in early 1900s

FOOTNOTE TO HISTORY — Both Austin and San Antonio once hoped to supersede Hollywood as the capital of the motion picture business.

As early as 1910, two brothers — W. Hope and Paul Tilley — were turning out commercial movies (mostly newsreels) in San Antonio. A year later, they moved on to Austin, set up studios on Congress Avenue and organized a production company.

By 1913, their Satek Film Co. had received an infusion of local capital and imported talent. The company tried its hand at making feature films. They produced three in Texas and along the Mexican border, budgeting each at a total cost of $5,000. The results were good enough that Warner Brothers Feature Film Company of New York distributed them around the U. S.

After six months, however, the company's star actress and the imported producer quit Texas for new opportunities in Chicago. Paul Tilley decided to leave, too, and moved to Hollywood where he got a job in film production. Brother Hope Tilley set up a new company and made a few more pictures in Austin.

He gave up after a short while, however, and the dream of making Texas the motion picture capital of the country died.

THE SCHOLARLY LIFE — Graduating from Stephen F. Austin University last fall with a perfect 4.0 grade point average was a student who may never use his education.

Thomas W. Matthews, the 25-year-old top scholar at the Nacogdoches school, is serving a life sentence for murder at Huntsville State Prison.

WHAT'S IN A NAME? — Del Rio, Val Verde County, was first known as "Las Sapas" and for good reason.

"Sapas" is an old Spanish word meaning "underground shelter." Since most of the first settlers lived in holes dug in the ground and roofed with tree limbs and mud, the community was known as "Las Sapas."

In 1862, Dr. James H. Taylor and his bride, Dona Paula Losoya de Rivas, moved to the area. He died shortly after, but Dona

Paula, joined by her sister, developed a thriving hacienda that was known as San Felipe del Rio. It eventually became the city of Del Rio.

ODD TEXAS — The largest state (next to Alaska, that is) has the smallest railroad.

Its main line is only 2 1/2 of a mile long, it owns no rolling stock, rents its locomotives and doesn't operate on Sundays. What's more, its main line ends smack in the middle of the Rio Grande.

It's the El Paso Southern, which provides a vital link between the U. S. and Mexico. Owned by the Southern Pacific, the line operates only from the S.P. main line to the center of the international bridge between El Paso and Juarez. There its tracks meet those of the Chihuahua Pacific Railroad of Mexico.

EVERYBODY'S CHURCH — San Juan, in the Rio Grande Valley, has a church, organized in 1918, which serves 23 different denominations.

STOP WASTING THE SUN!

The future sneaks up on us. Nothing recently in the news was more significant to your future than the almost overlooked Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) announcement that solar heating has arrived.

ALL THESE YEARS we've been wasting sunlight!

Our trade balance with other nations is more unbalanced in their favor than it has ever been. Ever!

And mostly because of the higher prices we're having to pay for all that Arab oil.

And right now — mostly due to recent cold weather — our nation is using more oil than ever before. Ever!

December demand for oil was 11 percent up from the previous December.

And temperatures are still running below normal most places.

Now the GOOD news:

With the ERDA announcement it's now known that under certain conditions, solar heating is already as economical as electric heating.

And this government-sponsored study projects that within four years solar heat will cost no more than gas or oil.

And thereafter — it should cost much less.

THIS IS AN EXCITING evolution, accelerated by the so-called "fuel crisis." We can thank the mercenary Arabs for forcing us to do what we should have done a long time ago.

Now we are expanding our use of other energy sources.

Nuclear energy now generates 11 percent of our nation's electricity.

Geothermal steam now generates 1 percent.

Windmills are already helping — and ocean currents and tides may.

Now we are beginning as never before to harness the sun.

In this race to see which alternative (or alternatives) is cheapest, may the best fuel win.

OUR GOVERNMENT is betting $290 million on solar energy, spending that much this year to accelerate research and development. As President, Jimmy Carter promises a bigger push for solar energy.

Yet — without counting on that, just utilizing the technology presently available — solar heating a new house will pay for itself with reduced fuel bills in 15 years.

The installation is the big cost — $6,000 to $12,000 for a single-family home with three bedrooms.

Understandably, presently, builders of new houses are inclined to favor gas or oil heat if only because that installation cost averages about $1,000.

BUT I HAVE SEEN at least one innovative solar heating system which promises an installation cost of less than $3,000 — so with a little "tax relief incentive" for builders to amortize that first cost of installation, America, before you know it, will again proclaim its "independence" from foreigners.

GI bill helping

ONE OF the best fringe benefits to come on the scene lately is the U. S. Army's new matching aid program to help soldiers build a college tuition fund.

The Educational Assistance Program — called by some the "GI Bill No. 2" — starts Jan. 1 and is open to any young man or woman who enlists for three years and agrees to put part of each paycheck into a special account until discharged.

For each dollar the individual has deducted, the Army adds two, up to $75 a month from the soldier. At the end of three years, the soldier can wind up with as much as $8,100 on deposit. It's then paid out in monthly installments of $225 for college expenses.

One of the most obvious good things about the plan in these days of high educational costs is that it allows a youth from a low or moderate income family to upgrade his college choices.

And, if a young person wants to attend college but thinks he isn't really ready for it, the Army program offers a concrete alternative by spending time in uniform, bringing maturity and self-discipline, before the college years.

Too, the plan, along with other attractive service incentives, will bring a steady stream of citizen soldiers through the armed forces without creating the overly inbred outlook some fear from an all-professional force.

Then, too, the Army may garner some highly qualified career soldiers via the new educational program.

The program certainly is new to the young people who might sign up for it, but it does have a clear precedent in the first GI Bill, the one coming out of World War II and its counterparts in Korea and later. Only in calling for a contribution in cash from the soldier is the program different.

The earlier GI Bill actually made money for the taxpayers, economists who have studied it believe. For every dollar spent on college or special vocational training for veterans, the Treasury got back several in taxes because of the education the soldiers received, to place them in higher income brackets.

Many cash bonuses vanish in the wink of an eye, spent on good times that leave pleasant memories, but little else. Such bonuses as this education plan should bring better life and attract high type individuals to the Army.

The program should inspire similar incentive programs, in both public and private bodies.

We invite young people to look into the Educational Assistance Program now, through our local Army recruiter, at 229-5000. San Antonio Light.

Letters to the Editor

To the people of my beloved "home town" — Georgetown:

Why would anybody in this town have to stop and think about IF they should vote FOR — drink? Why would anybody have to have all the facts of it, stuck right under their noses? Why are some people so blind—that they just don't see—all the filth, corruption, and disrepute, that goes with it — if it's voted in? Why can't they remember — and don't they want to see — all the crime — drunken driving, murders, and rape — that we have had already right here on our quiet streets for so long? Don't they know about the dangers, the risks, the involvement — for the safety of each citizen's life, wherever they might happen to be?

Don't they realize that there would have to be more police called out, and they would have to patrol our streets around the clock?

Do any of you really want all this heartbreak and trouble; and do you want people carrying guns to break into your stores holding you up, — not only taking your money, but, — so that they can DRINK — some more!

Sincerely,—dear
Georgetown,
Allene Rhea

Federal workers play it cool

Sweaters, long underwear (?), boots or slacks are style in cold Washington offices

By Lucia Mouat

Staff correspondent of The Christian Science Monitor

Washington
Although only a week into the new Carter administration, federal workers will tell you they are already more than feeling the difference.

For one thing, they are cold. While the General Services Administration (GSA) estimates that it will be six weeks before federal buildings nationwide are registering in at 65 degrees as President Carter has ordered, temperatures are already at that level and lower in some Washington offices. To cover the goose bumps, many employees are wearing several sweaters and boots or slacks.

"Long underwear is also under consideration," says one government researcher already bundled into two sweaters and about to slip into a third.

Even at this early stage there are signs of cutbacks in other amenities as well. In addition to President Carter's cancellation of home-work-home car delivery service for White House staff members and his request to Cabinet members to reduce their departmental motor pools, there are so far few signs of the usual office refurbishing that accompanies a change in administrations.

"I'm sure people are moving furniture around, but as far as buying it and knocking out walls . . . we haven't had any requests yet for major or minor changes," says Linda Sutcliffe of GSA's public-services division.

Of all this first week's shifts, however, it is certainly the temperature drop which is netting the chilliest reception as too much too fast.

"I don't know what the temperature is, but half the people over here are freezing," says a Treasury Department staffer.

"All our thermostats have been lowered, but we're going to have to monitor the temperatures because some offices are too frigid to do business," says an Agriculture Department spokesman.

Indeed the word is that in some cases the air conditioning was turned on in an effort to keep temperatures down.

"We almost had a wind-chill factor over here until we got them to shut off the flow of cold air," says one Pentagon staffer.

While there is sure to be some office refurbishing as more Carter appointees move into new jobs in the executive branch, a few Cabinet members are setting examples of their own.

For example, although sanctioning the ripping up of office carpets to install hot lines for quick telephone communication with all nine of his top-level assistants, Health, Education, and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano has vowed to do no refurbishing of his own office, but to use what is already there.

Similarly when former Transportation Secretary William Coleman suggested to his successor Brock Adams that his wife might wish to redecorate the office, Mr. and Mrs. Adams decided it did not need a change.

The new Transportation Secretary, who is also considering abolishing the department's special VIP dining room for top officials, will also ride to and from work in a regular car from the department's car-pool.

"All these things being done so far are highly visible and more symbolic than really saving the government all that much money," observes one federal lawyer. "I think the Carter administration wants to change people's attitude about government and the way the government perceives itself."

AUSTIN — Atty. Gen. John Hill is setting up a new unit to investigate white-collar crime which costs Texans an estimated $840 million a year.

Hill will rely on the Deceptive Trade Practices Act, the State Securities Act and other laws to crack down on so-called "Corporate crime committed with a fountain pen."

Since Hill has only civil powers, he must cooperate with district attorneys and federal officials where criminal violations are suspected.

A unit director, three investigators and two attorneys will be financed by a $235,000 federal grant extending over an 18-month period.

Investigations already under way include South Texas banking irregularities spotlighted by collapse of banks at Carrizo Springs and Rio Grande City, disappearance of a Wichita Falls grain dealer and possible misapplication of state funds by a state highway employee.

A three year old Chamber of Commerce study classifies as white collar crimes deceptive trade practice, embezzlement and pilferage, securities theft and fraud, receiving stolen property, bribery, payoffs, kickbacks and various other forms of fraud.

Appointments

Gov. Dolph Briscoe named Sam E. Carter of Temple to the State Banking Board replacing James

L. Lindsey of College Station whose term actually expired in 1973.

Briscoe reappointed Raul Jimenez of San Antonio to the State Board of Public Welfare and Jackie St. Clair of Austin as Commissioner of the Texas Department of Labor and Standards.

Other reappointments included Gen. Thomas S. Bishop as Texas adjutant general; Gen. Willie Scott as assistant adjutant general for Army and Gen. Belisario D. J. Flores as assistant adjutant general for Air.

AUSTIN NOTEBOOK

By Bill Kidd

AUSTIN — First tests of strength in legislative committees and floor action indicate that the conservatives and Gov. Dolph Briscoe have an upper hand — but not absolute control.

True, the Briscoe-Nugent (as in Rep. James Nugent of Kerrville) highway funding bill zipped through Nugent's Transportation Committee like the old fiery horse with the speed of light — but that's hardly a fair indicator.

Everyone, or at least everyone who counts, in Texas is for highways — just like virtue. It's only a question of how much, where, and at what cost.

And in legislative circles, it's not considered good form to vote against the chairman's bill.

OR THE GOVERNOR'S BILL. Or, as one member put it, to the tune of the old musical song, "Whatever Briscoe wants, Briscoe gets. . . ."

But members seem willing to let Briscoe get whatever he wants just about as long as it corresponds with what they, too, want.

That goes for measures which have the support of the House leadership as well, as was shown on the brief furor over Hurst Rep. Charles Evans' bill to exempt Texas from provisions of the federal antitrust law (the "parens patriae" bill).

That bill, HB 592, moved quickly into and out of Judicial Affairs (which Evans chairs) almost quicker than you could say "do pass and be printed."

But something happened on the way to the House, despite the best wishes of various interest groups, and so Rep. Evans decided to send the bill back to committee for more hearing.

That something was the interest of Attorney General John Hill, who wants to keep the power to bring suits on behalf of consumers.

AND LEGISLATORS ALSO know that it can be considered bad form to vote against legislation favored by someone who might end up being governor.

So, in the first skirmishes of this legislative campaign, committee chairman and the governor appeared to be getting things their way about half the time.

It's early, of course, and there will be lots of things this session which will really show who's top dog, and who's the beagle on the bottom in the session dog-fight.

As far as conservative-liberal battles, the various law and order proposals appear to be the most likely to produce the most votes along liberal-conservative lines.

Those proposals (oral confessions, wiretaps and the rest) should have a good chance of getting through committee in the House, where Rep. Lynn Nabers of Brownwood chairs Criminal Jurisprudence, and Rep. Tom Uher, Bay City, heads State Affairs.

Nabers is expected to be more sympathetic to some of the proposals that Rep. Craig Washington of Houston — who chaired the group last session — and while there may be some close votes, law and order should have the edge there.

The same is true for Senate State Affairs, where long-time chairman and conservative Sen. Bill Moore of Bryan holds sway.

What happens on the Senate side will depend in large part on where bills are referred by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, since Sen. Tati Santiesteban of El Paso heads the Jurisprudence Subcommittee on Criminal Matters.

AND THAT BODY — in addition to a chairman who opposes some of the proposals which have been mentioned above — seems to have a built-in deadlock, since it contains Lloyd Doggett of Austin and Oscar Mauzy of Dallas, who are likely to end up voting against Walter Mengden of Houston and Bill Meier of Eules.

Things may end up looking quite differently once the momentum of the session begins to increase, and the flow of legislation quickens.

But at the moment, the conservatives, who have the numbers and the positions of power for the most part, haven't imparted the expected conservative flavor to this 65th session of the Texas Legislature.

History and drama unite in UIL one-act play entry

The cast has been chosen for Georgetown High School's entry in the University Interscholastic League (UIL) One-Act Play Contest, "Mary of Scotland."

March 29 is the contest date, giving the GHS players approximately two months to get everything ready. Costumes (and for a period play that is no small matter), blocking, lines and performance must all be perfect by that date to bring home a coveted first place.

MISSY KINGERY will play the part of Mary Stuart and Beth Morse will play Elizabeth Tudor. Other members of the cast are Jim Smith (Jamie), Scott Smith (John Knox), Russell Caluette (Earl of Bothwell), Paul Minshew (Lord Burghley), Adrienne Holmans (Mary Beaton), Jan Rogers (Mary Livingstone), Pat Cox

(Mary Fleming), Rufus Tanksley (Maitland), Bob Brown (Morton), Karl Thomas (Lord Darnley) and Butch Pickens (Rizzio).

Understudies are Racheal Venable, Toni Cascio, Kathy Motheral, Jim Motheral and Stephanie Smith.

Members of the crew are Natalie Hubbard (sound), Ben Burgess (lights) and Donna Holmans (properties).

"MARY OF SCOTLAND" is a historical play about the intrigue and plotting in the court of Mary Queen of Scots.

Mary Stuart arrives in Scotland at 19 to take the throne as queen. She immediately runs into opposition from John Knox, a supporter of the Protestant Reformation.

Mary, a Catholic, pledges to do her best to serve a country which is half-Protestant and half-Catholic.

IN ENGLAND Elizabeth Tudor plots to bring Mary's downfall and prevent her from becoming heir to the throne of England. Elizabeth and her advisor, Lord Burghley, spread rumors of Mary's wantonness and trick Mary into marrying the handsome drunkard, Lord Darnley, instead of Lord Bothwell, Mary's true love.

The marriage is Mary's downfall. Darnley is a weak and jealous king. One evening he and three others break into Mary's chambers and kill Rizzio, her beloved Italian secretary.

A short while later Darnley is murdered and Mary weds Bothwell.

THE SCOTTS rise up against Mary with the encouragement of John Knox and Mary's councillors. She is imprisoned in Scotland and later in England where she remains until her death. She does, however, manage to triumph over her enemies. She bears a son who will one day rule both Scotland and England.

The cast of "Mary of Scotland" have already begun rehearsals and the long hours of work and preparation necessary to do well in the UIL contest. They have taken on a big job with this play. It will take much work to reach that number one goal.

HONORED — Vernon Lemens, Jr., new President of the First State Bank of Jarrell, awards an honorary plaque to former President Miss Cora Sexton during a gala reception last month. Also honored was retiring cashier F. W. Buchanan. The two officers served with the bank a combined total of nearly 100 years.

New, retiring Jarrell Bank heads honored

About 400 persons gathered in Jarrell's Woodman Fire Hall Jan. 23 for a gala reception honoring two retiring officers of the First State Bank of Jarrell and welcoming two new ones.

Taking leave of the bank were former President Miss Cora Sexton and former cashier F. W. Buchanan. Formally welcomed to their duties were new President Vernon Lemens, Jr. and new Executive Vice-President John M. Hopkins.

Lemens, who also continues in his position as Chairman of the Board of the bank, awarded honorary plaques to Miss Sexton and Buchanan and warmly commended them for their years of faithful service with the bank.

Miss Sexton joined the bank in 1918. Buchanan began work there in 1939.

THE COUNTY 4-H FOOD SHOW will be held next Saturday, February 12, at the Granger Recreation Center. There are two divisions in the Food Show: Juniors, 9-12 years of age, and Seniors, 13 years old and up.

The categories of competition will be Main Dishes, Side Dishes, Desserts and Snacks & Beverages. Contestants from across the county will be judged on their menu, their knowledge of nutrition and the dish they enter.

THE BUILDING will open at 9:30 a.m. and judging will begin at 10:00 a.m. Awards will be presented at 11:30 a.m. and a tasting bee held at 12:00 noon.

Adults are not allowed in the judging area, but a program on cake decorating will be held for parents and visitors.

THE TOP 4 juniors and top 4 seniors will advance to the District 4-H Food Show to be held in Austin on April 16. These 8 youths will compete with the top winners from our 17 county districts.

Those 4-Hers entering the Food Show need to turn in their menu and a copy of their recipe to the County Extension Office by Monday, Feb. 7. Recipes will be duplicated and given out the day of the Food Show.

TENATIVE PLANS have been set for the 1977 District 10 4-H Horse Show to be held Saturday, June 18 in Bryan, Texas in Brazos County. Plans are also being made to conduct an invitational for Roping and English event classes on the night of Friday, June 17. A few horse stalls would be available for those wishing to compete in the invitational events and spend the night in Bryan.

The possibility of a two day District Horse Show has been discussed over the past years but nothing has ever materialized. We would like to hear from Williamson County 4-H Horse Club leaders, parents & members as to their opinion and feelings regarding a two day show. We need to know if you are in favor of a two day show and what days of the week would be best; a Thursday and Friday Show or a Friday and Saturday Show.

IF THE DISTRICT was to go to a two day show in the future, it would make for a slower paced show with the possibility of adding more events such as English events. But, a two day show could also limit participation to some extent due to the problems encountered with working parents and the inconvenience it would place on them.

The 65th Texas Legislature will be voting on many bills that will affect education. This is the second in this newspaper's series summarizing these bills.

By providing our readers with this service we hope our citizens will be informed and encouraged to participate in the legislative decision-making process. Write to your senator and representative and let them know how you feel about these bills.

LEGISLATORS

REPRESENTING readers of this newspaper and their addresses are Senator Bill Patman, Senate Chambers, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711 and Representative Dan Kubiak, P. O. Box 2910, Austin, Texas 78767.

The following are bills filed relating to public schools.

*SB 1 BY CREIGHTON and HB 22 BY SULLIVAN AND BROCK—appraisal by productivity.

These bills would provide that farm, ranch and forest lands be appraised in relationship to productivity. "Accepted income capitalization methods" applied to average net income would be utilized to determine the ad valorem tax value on such land.

*HB 2 BY MASSEY — full state funding of the Foundation School Program

*HB 69 BY VALE — speech and hearing diagnostic and correction

This bill would provide speech and hearing diagnostic and correction services by public schools to nonpublic school students attending a school within the public school district's boundaries.

*HB 82 BY HUBENAK — educational equalization

This bill proposes to create a Local Educational Equalization Fund, establish a maximum tax rate in each school district equal to the rate utilized by the school district for the 1973 tax year and free the assessment ratio at the level utilized for that same year. The local Educational Equalization Fund would be composed of the dedication of 1 cent of the current state sales tax. The distribution would be based on ADA without consideration for the relative local ad valorem tax wealth of the district.

*HB 147 BY DELCO, MASSEY, AGNICH — 100 percent state financing of the Foundation School Program, increased equalization, limited enrichment

Along with 100 percent financing this bill adds provisions for increasing equalization aid and placing limits on the amount of local enrichment, with enrichment being defined to include the local share of equalization aid.

*HB 161 BY VALE — allocations for capital outlay

No state funds are presently provided to local school districts for capital expenditures such as facilities construction, site acquisition, etc. This bill provides an allotment for these expenses.

*HB 162 BY KASTER — instruction in parenting

Bill 162 provides that the Texas Education Agency shall develop a two-quarter course of study in parenting to be taught by homemaking teachers or other teachers in districts without homemaking teachers. An advisory committee of 10 teachers shall be appointed by the commissioner to assist in curriculum development. Beginning in school year 78-79, a student must have credit for two quarter units in parenting to receive a high school diploma.

Other reports shall include summaries of legislation on school personnel, curriculum and average daily attendance (ADA).

Liberty Hill NEWS

BY HOWARD N. WILSON

A group of conservation-minded citizens in Austin has organized to raise the funds necessary to purchase a wilderness area which will be maintained as "The Wild Basin" for future generations.

This area contains all of the different types of plants and animals of the area and it will be available in its natural state for sightseers and campers. It will have no buildings or other structures to disrupt its natural state. This is certainly a worthy venture which will be of great benefit to the people of this area where open land is becoming more scarce with each passing day.

We have our Sculpture Park in Liberty Hill and we still have ample area for new homes and room to move around. We are blessed by still having clean air, clean water and elbow room.

Saturday, February 5, from 9 a.m. until dark Liberty Hill Market Day will be in progress on Liberty Hill Square, regardless of the weather. Here will be a big variety of goods, many handmade, on display in the covered booths for everyone to examine and buy while also having the opportunity to see all of the monumental sculptures which were produced during the International Sculpture Symposium. Everyone is cordially invited to come enjoy the friendly atmosphere of Liberty Hill. Once you come we feel sure you will want to come back!

There will be several non-profit organizations represented at Market Day, including the Panther Booster Club at booth No. 13 and the Girl Scouts. The Annual Girl Scout Cookie Sale started last Friday and the girls will be selling their cookies. Be sure to get some cookies and help to promote the activities of our Girl Scouts!

There will be an organizational meeting for everyone interested in "Little League" and "Babe Ruth League" baseball in our community. The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. on Saturday, February 12, in the open area of the High School. Officers for The Liberty Hill Baseball Club will be elected and Managers will be selected. Every interested parent, or anyone else interested in this activity, should be present to help make this program a big success. Your support is necessary, because without it the eligible, interested young men will be unable to play. Your ideas and help are URGENTLY NEEDED!

The Liberty Hill Garden Club will have their monthly meeting at the regular time on Wednesday, February 9, in The Fellowship Hall of the Rock Church of Christ. The subject of the meeting will be soil preparation for gardens, pest control and insecticides. There will be speakers from the Williamson County Extension Service. Be sure to come.

The Garden Club will have something new starting soon. A committee from the Garden Club will select yards of the month, one a club member's yard and one a non-member's yard. Each winner will have a plaque placed in his yard for one month. The Publicity Club Chairwoman, Dean Cluck, says, "Let's have some beautiful yards in and around Liberty Hill."

The Liberty Hill Boys' Varsity Basketball Team lost to Rogers, the co-leader of the district, by 59-47 last Tuesday evening. The Panthers looked good in spots, but they never could overtake the taller Eagles. Poor shooting once again hurt the Panthers, and they couldn't make points even when the Eagles made mistakes.

Scoring for Liberty Hill were Robert Stephens with 22 points, Donnie with 18 points, Roy Montemayor with 6 points and Travis Gilmore with 1 point. The Panthers are now 13-13 in season play and they are 1-8 District 28-A competition. They traveled to Thorndale for a game Friday evening.

Although the Pantherettes were defeated 67-12 by Rogers last Tuesday evening, they are still making progress and showing improvement as they gain experience this season. The defensive players in this game were Sandi Carlisle, Laura Hinesley, Terry Wiginton, Diane Williams and Cynthia Williamson, all of whom did a fine job against the strong Rogers' offense. Scoring for Liberty Hill were Shirl Holder with 6 points, Donna Holder with 4 points and Pat Sullins with 2 points.

Plato expressed much wisdom when he said, "You can discover more about a person in an hour of play than in a year of conversation."

Billie Jean King, the grande dame of tennis who knocked out Bobby "Sugar Daddy" Riggs on the court and scored points with women everywhere, is the subject of an upcoming ABC movie. Entitled "Billie Jean," the story of her career will be penned by Judith Parker... Beginning in April, short stories by nine American authors will be dramatized over PBS. The National Endowment for the Humanities is footing the $2 million plus bill for the programs, which will run from 28-55 minutes. Among the authors represented are F. Scott Fitzgerald, Sherwood Anderson, Ernest Hemingway, Ambrose Bierce, Stephen Crane and John Updike. Some of the performers who will appear are Ron Howard, Fritz Weaver, Irene Worth and John Houseman.

Carrie Fisher (daughter of Eddie Fisher and Debbie Reynolds) is still fooling around with older men, professionally at least. She's been signed to play Marie, the college student who becomes friendly with Doc Delaney (Laurence Olivier) in NBC's production of "Come Back, Little Sheba." Previously, Ms. Fisher seduced Warren Beatty in "Shampoo."

Roastees for upcoming Dean Martin Celebrity Roasts include Angie Dickinson, Peter Marshall and Ted Knight... Lee Van Cleef made his mark at a late age in the business in the spaghetti western factories. Well, all that leather slapping and sneering has paid off. Van Cleef has been signed for an NBC pilot, "Scanlon," about a U.S. Marshall. The only difference between this and his former work is this is set in contemporary times a la McCloud.

"Fellini -- Wizards, Clowns and Honest Liars," is an appropriate title for an upcoming special on the great Italian film maker. Set to release at the same time as his next picture, "Cassanova," the special will feature comments by Anita Ekberg, the sensation of "La Dolce Vita," Anthony Quinn, Marcello Mastroianni, Donald Sutherland, and Lina Wertmuller, who was formerly an assistant to secret agent, code named "Diamond Head," whose mission is to thwart the attempted theft of a 21st century chemical explosive. Also starring in the projected series are France Nuyen, Hawaiian actor Zulu and Ward Costello. Production is currently underway in Honolulu.

Fellini... Roy Thinnes is also slated for an NBC pilot, "Diamond Head," about a

Robert Young and Victoria Racimo have been added to the growing cast list of "The Rhinemann Exchange"... Shirley MacLaine returns to the small screen in another CBS special on March 5. She's lined up some interesting guests, most notably Les Ballets Trockadero de Monte Carlo, a unique dance company consisting solely of men, who also dance the women's roles -- on perfect points. They're hysterical, technically astounding and should steal the show... Barry Manilow, the high priest of pop, will head his first special on March 2 over ABC. His guest will be Penny Marshall.

Flip Wilson will be a pitchman for PBS, when he acts as spokesman for public television's Festival '77 campaign to raise funds. It's set for March 6-20... Arthur Hill and Barbara Barrie team for a made-for-TV movie set for next season, about a young woman's search for her natural mother... Football great Jim Brown will be featured on Police Story later this season.

The 'New Indians' fight for future

ROBERT REDFORD, author of "Riding the Outlaw Trail," published in the Nov. 1976 issue of National Geographic, again joins forces with them when he narrates "The New Indians," a National Geographic special airing over PBS.

Amid the destruction and despair of his people a century ago, the great Oglala Sioux holy man, Black Elk, had a vision. The fifth generation, he prophesied, would bring back the strength and pride of the Indian people.

It is now the era of the fifth generation, and in "The New Indians," the third National Geographic Special of the season, an attorney, a rock musician, a tribal chief and a young educational counselor revive their ancient heritage and look forward to an exciting future.

Narrated by Robert Redford and hosted by E.G. Marshall, "The New Indians" airs over most PBS stations on Feb. 15. Here is an idea of some of the people you'll meet.

Susan Supernaw -- a young Creek education counselor from the "Uptown" neighborhood of Chicago, she travels to the Stoney Indian Reserve in the Canadian Rockies with eight Indian friends to attend the Indian Ecumenical Conference. Susan joins some 2,000 Indians from 50 tribes in North America to learn the ancient traditions of Indian culture, which she has never really known.

James Sewid -- a chief of the Kwakiutl Indians, a tribe whose rich culture is highlighted by elaborate ceremonies. One ceremony basic to this tribe, the potlatch, was once banned by the Canadian Government. Since the Canadian ban on the potlatch was lifted in 1951, Sewid has devoted his life to reviving the Kwakiutl's tribal ceremonies, dances and totem pole art. Sewid's family members perform their ancestral dance called "Animal Kingdom" in the program.

Claudeen Arthur -- a young Navajo attorney who joined a legal services team for her people two years ago, fresh from law school. In the sun-drenched reservation town of Shiprock, New Mexico, Claudeen meets with her clients -- Navajo men and women with all kinds of problems and little experience with lawyers. "The New Indians" shows her efforts to save a Navajo sheepherder's land from strip-mining.

Stephen Tiger -- a young Miccosukee Indian whose tribe retreated into the isolation of the Florida Everglades when the Federal Government demanded they move to lands west of the Mississippi River in the early 1800's. Today, Stephen's people are the first tribe to achieve total self-government, and have established their own first-rate school system, and administration and health services. Miccosukee children now learn both modern and traditional ways of life. Stephen, a rock musician, himself returns to his homeland after ten years, hoping that through his music and art he can find expression for his unique Indian heritage.

"Good morning, I'm Johnny Carson"

The talk show king holds court

By DAN LEWIS

HOLLYWOOD -- The setting is familiar to millions of late-night television fanatics: the desk, the club chair, the love seat. And so is the man behind the desk, talking into the microphone: Johnny Carson.

Only this is 11:30 o'clock in the morning, not 11:30 at night. And the audience is highly restrictive, only 70 in number, seated with pad and pencils in hand, primed to fire questions at the major domo of "The Tonight Show" for these past 14 years.

Precisely at 11:30, Carson walks out. There's no Ed McMahon to give the clarion call, "Here'sss... John... eeee." No Doc Severinsen or band to play him aboard. Instead, he walks out and says, "Good morning, I'm Johnny Carson." Quickly, he invites questions.

"Why do you take so many vacations?" someone fires out.

"That didn't take long," Johnny answers. "I knew that one would come up."

Johnny explains that when he started the show in 1962, it was an hour and 45-minute nightly show, and he got six weeks vacation every year. He thought that was okay during the first five years.

"After a while," he continues, "you find you need more time to get your head together. After 14 years, I found that it was all I could handle. I really had to get the three-day weekend." (And the 14 weeks of vacation).

Next question: When do you plan to retire?

"In the middle of the show

tonight," Carson jests, then turns serious. "I have no plans (to retire). If I got so tired, or if doing the show became such a drag, I'd quit. Or... if the audience doesn't show up and I found the show was going downhill." (There have been reports of ratings slippage, and concern about inroads by the competition, suggesting that contrary to past attitude, Carson was quite willing to meet the press en masse for the first time since moving the show from New York to California.) What would he do if he gave up "The Tonight Show"?

"I'm not sure what I'd do. I have no desire to do a weekly prime-time variety series. We do it all here (on the nightly show). It's really a composite of comedy, music, blackouts, sketches and conversation. I'd like to do maybe six or seven specials (in prime time)."

How come he's not touching up his hair anymore?

"I'm 51 years old. I just said the hell with it, let the gray come through." It's all gray now.

Is he sensitive to those who criticize the show for not being more purposeful and meaningful?

"I know we've been criticized for being superficial and not serious, and it (the show) is, and it's going to stay that way. I don't feel that I have to defend myself against those critics. We are a variety show -- entertainment. It's much easier to do a talk show -- and I don't particularly like that label for our show. All the host has to do is sit down with a clip board and sit back, ask a few questions and let the guest do all the talking. If you're going to do comedy, you can't get into big issues." Final judgement: The Tonight Show will remain frothy.

On the subject of raunchy material:

"Things are much looser today. Five years ago, we couldn't do any marijuana jokes. Sounds almost silly today. A lot of things have changed. We've opened up considerably. We have certain limits."

Sometimes, Carson conceded, he exceeds those limits, an instinctive reaction to a comment, or a situation when he wishes he hadn't done or said it.

"When you do comedy, you react automatically, then you say 'oh God, why did I say -- or do -- that?' But when it's done, it's done."

Except, there is one recourse. He can be blipped.

Later, Carson became philosophical about television standards. He referred to it as "capricious morality on television," explaining: "You can kill people, blow their heads off, but you can't show cleavage."

What about all this talk that he's a loner, hardly ever seen in public?

"I like my privacy. I'm on television so much, I want to retreat. I'm not a First Nighter (at show openings), although you sometimes have to do those things. I'm not the greatest mixer in the world. I guess I'd be that way even if I weren't on television."

Oddly, doing his act in Las Vegas or occasionally at a music theater, is a necessary diversion for him. It's different, Carson explains, than television. It's performing.

Is there new comedy

JOHNNY CARSON: "I know we've been criticized for being superficial and not serious, and it is, and it's going to stay that way."

emerging?

"Sure. There's new subjects, so there's new comedy. We didn't have swine flu to talk about last year."

His best guests are the ones who enjoy themselves. Some people don't feel comfortable in this situation, no matter how big a star he or she might be.

"It always startles me," Carson relates, "to have a monumental star come out and I see his eyes jumping around wildly." Carson rolls his eyes, simulates a bewildered look to demonstrate his point.

One reporter observes he enjoys Carson when he's in trouble (on the show) and has to bail out.

"I seem to be at my best in those circumstances," Carson agrees. "You have to change around, call on your experience. The trick is to get a little silly, and physical."

His day normally starts about 10 a.m. He's on the phone with his producer, Fred de Cordova, to discuss that night's show. Carson reveals. He gets to the NBC studio in Burbank about 2 p.m., gets his monologue (the show has six writers) at 3. If there are any sketches on the program, Carson goes through one rehearsal. Taping is at 5:30 every night during the week.

KLRN begins fund drive for new transmitter

The Southwest Texas Public Broadcasting Council, licensee of KLRN-TV in San Antonio, has announced the beginning of a Capital Fund Drive to help finance the construction of a second transmitting station near Austin. It is designed to improve signal quality, according to Tom McCrummen Jr., Chairman of the Council's Board of Trustees.

At the same time, McCrummen announced that heading up the year-long, one-time drive will be Ray C. Hall, owner of Ray Hall Advertising and Public Relations of Austin. The recipient of numerous professional awards in advertising and public relations, Hall is the immediate past president of the Austin Advertising Club. He has served as an officer of the Austin chapter of Public Relations Society of America and Sigma Delta Chi, Society of Professional Journalists.

THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION has already granted permission to the Council for the construction of a new UHF station on Channel 18. The antenna and transmitter will be located near Austin in order to improve the present KLRN-TV coverage within the city and to the North.

The present antenna and transmitter, broadcasting on Channel 9, is located near New Braunfels and was designed to cover the cities of San Antonio and Austin with a good quality, Class A signal. However, because of some problems principally related to terrain, the signal did not reach into either city with the predicted signal quality. In fact, some parts of Travis County receive little or no signal at all. The result has been a limitation of public television programming to a large part of Central Texas.

Unfortunately, say station officials, many rural and lower income areas, to which no cable service is available, cannot receive a useable signal without the help of an outside antenna.

THE CAPITAL FUND DRIVE, with a goal of $330,000 will help provide the necessary matching funds for an equipment grant which the Council had been awarded in the amount of $400,000. Advance pledges of support have already accounted for $30,000 of the goal.

The activation of the new channel in Austin will expand educational and public television coverage to the entire Austin-Travis County-Central Texas area. In addition, it will give more children in classrooms and at home access to the important children's programming which is a regular feature of KLRN's schedule. It also will allow 23 additional school districts in Central Texas to participate in classroom TV programming.

Once the Austin area coverage problem has been solved with the activation of the new Channel 18, said McCrummen, the Council will then turn its attention to the relocation of the present transmitter and antenna to a site closer to San Antonio to improve the reception problem in that city and the Bexar County area.

Local youth on dean's list

Academic officials of Texas Tech University have released the names of students who were listed on the deans' honor rolls for the Fall semester.

They included Tamara L. Fairburn, 1411 East 15th and Pamela A. Mickan, Rt. 2, Box 50A of Georgetown and Karen D. Alley of Route 1, Leander.

Texas Tech University has an enrollment of more than 22,000 students in six colleges and two schools. They are the colleges of Agricultural Sciences, Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education, Engineering, Home Economics, the School of Law and the Graduate School.

Local CF leaders named

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Caskey of Georgetown have accepted the chairmanship of the Annual Spring Special Event on behalf of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation. They will be recruiting volunteers within the Community to plan an entertaining activity to take place this Spring.

The purpose of this Special Event will be to provide the Community with information about Cystic Fibrosis and to raise funds to support research, education and care programs for children affected by cystic fibrosis and other lung-damaging diseases like severe asthma, chronic bronchitis and bronchiectasis.

CYSTIC FIBROSIS is the number one genetic killer of children. Approximately one in every twenty Americans is a symptomless carrier of the recessive C/F gene. Cystic Fibrosis is inherited when both parents carry the recessive gene.

At the present time, no cure for Cystic Fibrosis is known.

G'town coaches whipped by girls

THE ALL-GIRL exhibition basketball team called the Red Heads was in Georgetown Thursday night and, to answer the big question, all seven did have fire engine red hair.

Just having red hair wasn't all though, those girls could handle a basketball like Jimmy Carter can handle a peanut.

THEY DID EVERYTHING from dribbling with their knees to shooting with their feet as they played an exhibition game against the Georgetown school coaches and friends.

The Red Heads played the Twinkle Toes Twelve to raise money for Georgetown athletic fund.

GEORGETOWN High School coach Les Johnson said, "We really enjoyed the game, they put on a fantastic show."

The school's profit from concessions and their share of the gate came to $760, enough to completely finish paying for hurdles for the track teams.

"That's what we were working for," said Johnson. HIGH SCORERS for the Twinkle Toes Twelve were David Greeno with 12 points and Mac Rowlett with 6 points.

Playing for the Twelve were Orbrei Holden, Richard Steinhauser, Les Johnson, David Greeno, Mac Rowlett, Jeff Henry, Casey Winters, Dan Noll, Ed Ruby, Danny Spradley, Alan Perin, Steve Phillips, Grady Roller and Jack Gray.

THOSE 7 GIRLS really had hustle. After playing the first half they put on a half time show of trick shots, fancy dribbling and juggling basketballs. Then they went into the stands to sell and autograph souvenir programs before the second half.

The Twinkle Toes, well they rested during the half.

Pirates take on two tough tests

Southwestern University's Pirates, now back on a winning streak, will face stern tests Saturday and Monday when they play the two leading teams in the Big State Conference, Texas Lutheran College and St. Mary's University.

The Bucs take on the TLC Bulldogs in Seguin Saturday at 7:30 p.m. and then play St. Mary's Rattlers at 7:30 Monday night in San Antonio.

SOUTHWESTERN came close to defeating both teams in games in Georgetown two weeks ago, losing to TLC 53-49 and then to St. Mary's 50-49 in a game finished under protest by the Bucs.

The outcome of that protest, concerning a ruling on a technical foul called and then removed against St. Mary's, is still before the conference decision makers. Southwestern Coach John Edwards has requested that the game not be counted in conference standings.

The Pirates warmed up in San Antonio Monday night as they topped Trinity University 80-62 with four Bucs hitting in double figures.

STEVE DOERING led the onslaught with 20 points, hitting seven of eight field goal attempts and six of seven free throws. Tommy Johnson followed with 17 points, while big Phillip Sewell hit 13 and Jeff Weaver 11.

Danny Ivey had a big night for Trinity as he poured in 32 points, hitting 11 of 20 from the field and 10 of 12 from the free throw line while grabbing 14 rebounds. Darrell Williams and Erik Johnson had 10 each for the Tigers.

Sewell and Joe Buchanan led rebounders with 10 and nine rebounds.

Southwestern had a red-hot 59 percent field goal accuracy compared to 33.3 percent by the Tigers.

Southwestern has won 11 games and lost eight this season, and owns a 2-3 mark in conference play.

SCORING LEADERS this season are Johnson with 13.5 points per game, Sewell with 12 points per game, Buchanan with almost 11 per game, Weaver (six games) with a nine point average, Mike Minks with eight, Kenny Dennis with 7.5, and Doering with 6.5. Buchanan and Sewell lead rebounders with 13.9 grabs apiece as the Bucs have been able to out-rebound opponents 689-649 through the season.

Following games this weekend with TLC and St. Mary's, the Bucs will have four regular season contests left with the final game here Feb. 23.

DAVID GREENO, (23) head track coach for the high school, demonstrates his famous hook shot. Greeno was high scorer for the Twinkle Toes Twelve with 12 points.

SU women take revenge

Whip St. Mary's in overtime

The Southwestern women's basketball team avenged an earlier loss to St. Mary's by beating the Rattler women 47-43 in overtime in Georgetown Thursday night.

THE PIRATES had to hold off a rally by the fast-closing San Antonians to win the game.

St. Mary's had come back from a 22-16 halftime deficit to tie the score at the end of regulation play.

The Rattlerettes had won an earlier contest in San Antonio 56-46 over Southwestern.

Sharon Eoff led Southwestern with 12 points while Risa

Marshall hit 10, Tracy Strane nine, and Debbie Hansen and Janice Doughty six apiece.

EDELLA LIRA hit 14 points to pace the St. Mary's attack followed by Gray with 12 and Hegeman with 11.

The Southwestern women, now 7-6 for the season, host St. Edward's University in Sid W. Richardson Physical Education Center at 7 p.m. Saturday, then play Texas A&I in Kingsville Tuesday night and return for a home game against Incarnate Word College of San Antonio at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Richardson Center.

Eagles to face Chaps

After falling to Lockhart last Tuesday in overtime, Georgetown will travel to Westlake Tuesday night for a 7:30 p.m. game.

The Eagles worst defeat of the season came against Westlake, when the Chaparrals slaughtered Georgetown, 90-49.

Against Lockhart, the Eagles evened their district record at 5-5 with an 89-85 loss in overtime.

The Eagles took a three-point halftime lead after jumping to a 23-16 margin in the first quarter, but the Lions evened it at 59-59 at the end of three periods.

In the fourth quarter, each team scored 18 to send the Eagles into their first District

12AAA overtime game this season.

Lockhart outscored Georgetown 12-8 in the overtime period to win it.

Mark Edwards fell from third to fourth place in the district individual scoring race, despite a 22-point performance. He moved down a spot because Lockhart's Siemering, who was fourth, scored 34.

Ronnie Wagner and Joe Jenkins had 18 each for the Eagles, with David Giese chipping in 10 points.

Beef Short Course set for April 4-5

Discussions on breeding and marketing of cattle will be among the highlights of the twenty-seventh annual Beef Cattle Short Course at Texas A&M University, April 4-5.

Among featured speakers will be Dr. Peter Chenoweth of Colorado State University and Dr. K. C. Williamson of Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, points out Dr. Dennis Herd, beef cattle specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

CHENOWETH, an authority on reproductive performance of beef cattle, will discuss breeding soundness in bulls as well as libido and mating behavior in bulls. Williamson, with years of experience in selling cattle for top dollar in Virginia, will discuss new potentials in cattle marketing.

Other topics to be discussed during the short course include liver fluke and stomach worm control, prospects for cattle tick control, status of the brucellosis control program, cattle price outlook, Rumensin as a new feed additive, nutritional value of large hay packages and improving rebreeding performance in first-calf heifers. Talks dealing with range nutrition of cattle and pasture production should also be of interest to producers, notes Herd.

The short course is a part of the annual Texas Animal Agriculture Conference, which features individual sessions on beef cattle, dairy cattle, swine and horses as well as special programs on range, pasture and forage production and wildlife management.

ALSO FEATURED will be an equipment and machinery exhibit and a trade show, adds Herd.

GEORGETOWN Junior High School Coach Alan Perin (33) gets the jump on the Red Heads in Thursday nights game in the high school gym.

SAVING TIPS on electric heating

1. Keep heating equipment at top operating efficiency. Have it checked seasonally by qualified serviceman.
2. Set thermostat at 70° or lower. Lower to 50°- 60° if you'll be away several days.
3. Weatherstrip doors and windows; caulk cracks to prevent drafts and warm air loss.
4. Check the filter every 30 days on forced-air systems. If filter is permanent, clean it by manufacturer's directions; if it's disposable, replace if dirty.
5. Thorough home insulation keeps the warmth in, cuts energy use. Can pay for itself by lowering heating (and cooling) costs.
6. When fireplace is not in use, keep damper closed.
7. On sunny days open draperies, blinds to let in warmth of sun.
8. Open outside doors as little as possible.
9. Keep furniture, draperies away from air outlets and returns so air will flow easily. Clean often.

Conserve electricity and you help conserve one or more of the fuels needed to produce it. Conserve fuels and you help assure that there will be enough to meet essential needs for electricity in the future.

When you pass a TP&L office, warehouse, generating plant or other facility, you'll see that we've turned off all non-essential lighting. And, in as many other ways as possible, TP&L is reducing its own uses of electricity.

REMEMBERING...

By BILL BROOKS

THE FISHING TRIP
I had fished lots in the creek near our house but one day Dad said we were going on a real fishing trip. He had heard about a good place over in another county. It was said to be a beautiful tree-lined river that had real, honest-to-goodness, clear running water in it with perch and bluegills as big as a man's hand and catfish that could snap a 20-pound test line slicker'n a whistle.

Dad said he was just going to close the blacksmith shop down for about a week since it was off season anyway and we could just go down there, camp out and have ourselves a real good time. We didn't have a car like lots of folks but we had an old pre-war one-ton chevy flat bed truck that somehow kept going due to Dad's mechanical ability and a large quantity of bailing wire. The truck had short side boards and we tied a wagon sheet over them. Under the sheet was placed food, bedrolls, fishing gear and three wide-eyed youngsters.

We left before sun up. The two things I remember about the trip down was the bumpy road and a jar of rancid shrimp (Dad said rancid shrimp was just about the best catfish bait you could use) breaking right near where I was trying to sleep. Pu-weee!

We got there and it was every bit as pretty as we had imagined. We stopped at a grassy place under huge pecan trees near a little waterfall and a deep blue pool of rippling water. Mother made camp while Dad readied the fishing lines. Soon we were sitting on the bank watching cork floats bob up and down hoping for a bite.

We caught quite a few that first day and we kept them all in a big wash tub full of water. We could watch them swim around and we would reach our hands down in the water to touch their slick sides and try to catch them. We gave certain ones names. The next day Mother was going to fry some of them for our lunch. What? Kill our fish? "No Mama, please don't!" "We wanna take 'em home and raise 'em."

We were soon tired of fishing so we went wading in a shallow place downstream where we tried to catch frogs and turtles. We picked cattails and that evening we caught a fruit jar full of fireflies. We sat around a campfire after dark singing songs, then Mother read from the Bible.

It must have been long after midnight when Dad shook us awake to tell us we'd have to leave. A local farmer had come down and told him it was fixing to rain and the river would most likely come down out of banks and wash our camp away.

We hurried to gather up things as the wind started blowing and lightning streaked across the sky. Dad asked what we wanted to do with the tub full of fish. "Put 'em back in the river!" My big brother and my Dad carried the tub down to the river and poured it out and I was glad the fish were going back to their friends.

Unknown to anyone, I made another trip to the water — to dump a sack of rancid shrimp. I thought the catfish might enjoy them and I for sure didn't wish to have them in the truck with me on the way back home.

Come Enjoy

Comparisons would show G'town sales up....if

Comparison of retail sales figures from the third quarters of 1975 and 1976 would have shown Georgetown's sales up about 6.65 percent instead of down 6.53 percent if a tax return representing approximately $5,000 worth of sales had not been kicked out of a computer, the State Comptroller's Office reported this week.

THE COMPARISON, requested from the Comptroller's Office following a Jan. 24 analysis of county retail sales for the third quarter of 1976, showed Georgetown with $40,033.24 worth of sales subject to tax between July and September of last year. That figure is $2,335.97 down from the one from the same period of the year before, $37,697.27.

ALL YOURS, MYRETA say Dr. Van C. Tipton and Mrs. Estha Scoggins as they formally proclaim Miss Myreta Matthews of Liberty Hill the 1977 County Chairman of the Williamson County Historical Commission. Dr. Tipton, the 1976 Chairman, and Mrs. Scoggins, Commission Secretary, completed the transfer of duties, complete with the chairman's gavel, during ceremonies at the Commission's meeting Thursday afternoon.

Measles immunization time is now — for children who have not received the vaccine, Carla Shearer, a health education specialist advises.

Measles ("10-day" or "red" measles, or technically, rubeola) is considered the most serious of the common childhood diseases — and it is highly contagious for about four days before, and four days after, the rash appears, she said.

Complications can include ear infections, pneumonia, deafness, blindness, encephalitis or other forms of brain disease — or death.

Before the vaccine became available in 1963, approximately 400 persons died of measles each year in the United States. By 1974, the number was cut to 20, she said.

"Actually, with the measles vaccine, there is no need for a child to suffer from measles at all, but outbreaks still occur. Texas reported 266 cases last year," she said.

Often pre-school children account for many cases. Texas law requires certain immunizations for all children entering Texas schools. Because many parents wait until immunization is required, pre-schoolers are left unprotected.

One-year of age has been the usual time for measles immunization — but last October, the American Academy of Pediatrics recommended delaying until 15 months of age for infants in communities where the disease is not prevalent.

In the event of measles outbreaks, the Academy recommends the vaccine be given any time after six months of age — followed by a second inoculation after 15 months of age, Ms. Shearer said.

"Measles live-virus vaccine is effective and safe. However, as with other vaccines slight reactions are possible — such as fever or mild rash. If fever is high or persists — or other symptoms appear, consult a physician," she added.

Early signs of measles include a runny nose, watery eyes, cough and fever. After three or four days, a blotchy rash appears on the face, then becomes generalized — and last usually four to six days, the specialist said.

Co. law has busy week

Williamson County Sheriff's officers had their hands full this past week, mostly with thefts and burglaries in rural areas, while Georgetown police had an unusually quiet week with only one offense reported.

The Sheriff's Dept. received a report late this week that $250 worth of Craftsman tools in a red toolbox had been stolen from a construction site on Rt. 4 in Leander.

COMPLAINANT Robert Payne of Round Rock said the tools were probably taken sometime Monday or Tuesday. Deputy Oscar Dungan is investigating the case.

Thursday, David M. Brown of 410 Riviera Springs reported that a spare tire, a wheel, and one hubcap valued at a total of $112 were stolen from his first pickup between 7 and 8 p.m. Wednesday while the vehicle was parked behind the First Baptist Church in Leander.

BROWN SAID the tire was a brand new 750x16 equipment tire mounted on an aluminum-colored wheel with a demountable rim. The hubcap, he reported, is black and chrome-colored. Deputy Jim Boutwell was assigned to the case.

Tuesday deputies received a report that a 7 Rystal-brand Citizens Band radio, serial number 6666, had been stolen from a car sometime that day while the vehicle was parked on the Leander High School parking lot.

Complainant Chris Jeffrey of 3419 Shenandoah in Leander said the auto had also been vandalized the previous day, with Cola poured across the windshield, air let out of the tires, and a coil wire pulled the distributor cap. Deputy Jim Wilson investigated the matter.

Another theft was reported Tuesday.

Complainant Bill Hurst of Austin said 55 old vehicle batteries were stolen from behind his Hurst Automotive shop on Highway 183 in Jollyville sometime last weekend. Deputy Wilson was assigned to that case.

Tuesday a case of indecent exposure was reported from Leander.

A resident there said a heavy-set Spanish man had repeatedly followed his 17-year-old daughter from Leander High School to a service station and back, continually exposing himself to her. That matter is still under investigation.

After one Temple police vehicle and two Belton patrol units were wrecked in the pursuit, the fugitive car finally rolled over in Belton and the driver was apprehended and placed in jail.

ONE OFFICER sustained minor injuries in the melee.

Lee Morgan of 508 Cedar in Georgetown Thursday reported theft of two $23 disposals from each apartment of a duplex under construction at 806 Judy.

He said there had been no forced entry. The disposals he reported, had been in the duplex since early in December. Officer Linda Rumbaugh is investigating.

THE BURGLARY of a residence near Schwertner was reported Tuesday as well.

Complainant Gladys Goode said her home on FM 487 just west of Schwertner was burglarized sometime Tuesday. Investigators said someone entering the house through an unlocked screen door did substantial damage to a wooden door in the house but did not disturb or steal anything else.

YET ANOTHER burglary was reported Monday.

A Round Rock construction company reported that a $360 gas range and a $40 stove hood were both stolen from inside a house under construction at 1209 Meadows Drive near Round Rock.

The range was described as a 30-inch, avocado green Caloric Gasrange, serial number 2977576. The hood was described as being also 30-inches wide and avocado green.

Investigators said burglars had broken a window in the front of the house to gain entry.

Georgetown police were nearly involved in a wild chase Thursday and investigated a theft that same day.

The chase began about 1 a.m. Thursday when the Temple police department asked local officers' help in stopping a fugitive while Chevrolet Malibu running at speeds in excess of 100 miles an hour and without lights, southbound on Interstate Highway 35.

OFFICER Rudy Aleman, along with Sheriff's Deputies William Chandler and David Brown and later a Round Rock police patrol unit, set up an interception post on I-35.

Before local officers spotted the vehicle it made a U-turn and headed back north on the highway, still running above 100 miles per hour.

After one Temple police vehicle and two Belton patrol units were wrecked in the pursuit, the fugitive car finally rolled over in Belton and the driver was apprehended and placed in jail.

ONE OFFICER sustained minor injuries in the melee.

America exhibit opens at the LBJ Library

A new exhibit opened February 4 at the LBJ Library's South Gallery, AMERICA: FROM AMERIGO VESPUCCI TO THE LOUISIANA PURCHASE.

The exhibition is a cross section of American historical masterpieces, such as a letter in Amerigo Vespucci's hand dated 1476 giving an account of his first voyage to America, the first Latin edition of the celebrated "Columbus Letter" (1493), the first printing of the Declaration of Independence (1776) and a Mohawk Indian Deed (1714).

Also included in the exhibit is a sculptured portrait of Benjamin Franklin by the French sculptor Houdon (1779), a letter from Lord Cornwallis to General Washington asking for surrender terms (1781), and a proclamation dated 1803 concluding a treaty with France that more than doubled the size of the United States (a million square miles) at about four cents an acre — The Louisiana Purchase.

THE EXHIBITION contains 150 items in the media of letters, books, drawings, maps, globes, paintings and early navigational tools.

The exhibition is made available through the courtesy of the Pierpont Morgan Library, New York City and through a grant from the Texas Commission on the Arts and Humanities.

AMERICA will be on view through March 3, 1977.

Museum hours are 9 to 5 daily. Admission is free.
